Scandal May Involve 100 Cadets, Includes 30 Football Players

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP)—More than 100 Air Force Academy cadets may be involved in a classroom cheating scandal, including about 30 football players, it was officially announced Saturday.

Secretary of the Air Force Eugene M. Zuckert issued a statement in Washington saying that an investigation indicates the existence "of a well-organized group of 10 or 12 cadets who were stealing examination papers and offering them for sale."

"Some of these cadets have already submitted their resignations for the good of the service," Zuckert did not elaborate in his reference to the football squad.

So far, the academy has announced the resignations of 29 cadets, but said the probe was continuing.

Ben Martin, academy football coach, said regulations forbid any comment from him at this time. He said normally about 40 cadets are members of the varsity football squad and that spring practice is scheduled for April. The 1964 academy team won four games, lost five and tied one.

Zuckert emphasized that the "overwhelming majority" of the cadets were not involved. Prior to the resignations the cadet wing numbered 2,567.

The civilian chief of the Air Force said he was satisfied "that the investigation of clear evidence of cheating at the Air Force Academy is being handled fairly and expeditiously and that every consideration is being given to the individuals who are being investigated."

The academy said it would not disclose the names of the cadets who have resigned.

Zuckert's announcement climaxed a week of tension at the nation's newest service academy, following start of the probe last Monday.

Individual cadets brushed aside questions about the investigation, but a spokesman for the academy said, "They are disturbed and embarrassed about this. They aren't saying much, but I know they want any cadets that have violated the honor code to clear out."

This is the first time the finger of scandal has been pointed at the 10-year-old school. The probe is being made by Air Force officers flown here from other bases — "qualified investigators," Haney called them.

The academy in its original announcement Tuesday said it was checking reports that examination papers had been illegally obtained and used. Col. Haney said Saturday he could not go beyond that at this time.

The honor code manual, by which each cadet is bound two months after he enters the academy in June as a freshman, says: "The cadet honor code consists basically of four (Continued on Page Nine)

Kerner Presents Program Tuesday

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Gov. Otto Kerner will tell Illinois lawmakers Tuesday what he expects of them in the six-months session.

Reapportionment and revenue reform were top items in the program he outlined at the Jan. 11 inauguration.

Since then he and leaders of both parties held an apparently cordial meeting intended to get a bi-partisan program moving early on a master plan for higher education.

In the face of persistent Republican demands, the Democratic governor may give the budget-minded some idea of how close state income is to state outgo.

GOP leaders say the General Assembly can't determine programs or tax needs until the governor supplies this information.

Kerner Plans Trade Mission To Far East

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Gov. Otto Kerner, who led a trade mission to Europe for Illinois in 1963, will lead one to the far east this fall.

In announcing the overseas business promotion program Saturday, Kerner said a preliminary study shows opportunities for Illinois products in Japan, Taiwan, Philippines, Hong Kong and Thailand.

"While Illinois is now recognized as the Nation's No. 1 export state," Kerner said in a statement, "we must not rest on our laurels in this period of dynamic growth in international commerce."

"We plan to increase our share of the total U.S. exports from the estimated $2.2 billion which we had in 1964."

"The Department of Commerce projection for U.S. exports of $50 billion in 1975 gives us a high target to shoot for."

"From the facts available on the far east, I am advised that this will be one of the real growth areas and not a hard to reach market for Illinois exports," he said.

Kerner said a survey of companies on the European trade mission showed more than 90 per cent favored another mission and 80 per cent recommended going to the far east.

He said the preliminary study showed Hong Kong and Thailand industry will need more of Illinois' sophisticated equipment and Japan will need foodstuffs, particularly soybeans.

Withdrawal From South Viet Nam Unthinkable, U.S. Spokesman Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—A top U.S. spokesman on Far Eastern policy said Saturday that U.S. withdrawal from S. Viet Nam is "unthinkable." He held open the possibility of enlarging the war in response to Communist actions.

Asst. Secretary of State William P. Bundy said that in the past year infiltration of Red guerrilla fighters and supplies from North Viet Nam through Laos and South Viet Nam has "markedly increased."

This infiltration "has included for the first time significant numbers of indigenous North Vietnamese trained in North Viet Nam in regular military units," he said.

Bundy's discussion of Vietnamese problems and U.S. policy for dealing with them was contained in a speech prepared for the Chamber of Commerce in Washington, Mo.

His speech confirmed publicly information disclosed by high officials here Friday night that heavy infiltrations of North Vietnamese troops into South Viet Nam had taken place during 1964. Officials put the number at several thousands.

Normally, the governor does not give the assembly a budget message until April. One emergency financial matter is likely to be brought up by the Illinois School Problems Commission.

Members say they will seek a deficiency appropriation of about $18 million for grade and high schools.

Otherwise, payments on state aid claims will fall short about 19 per cent until June 30.

Another $10 million deficiency will be asked to cover other educational shortages.

House organization will be completed with appointment of committees by Speaker John Touhy. He named the important reapportionment committee last week. Senate committee lists are complete.

The Senate Executive Committee will resume hearings Tuesday on conflict of interest bills affecting lawmakers and state employees.

Fire, Explosions Rock Anchorage, No One Injured

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—A fire and explosions raged for more than three hours in a waterfront area Saturday, destroying a 600-foot-long Standard Oil Co. warehouse and office building.

Firemen used foam to douse flames around nearby petroleum storage tanks and kept them from exploding.

There were no reports of injuries.

Two railroad box cars and a truck were seen burning.

The fire broke out at 2:48 p.m. (7:48 p.m. EST). Firemen said at about 5:40 p.m. that it appeared to have been contained to the immediate area of the warehouse-office building.

A nearby small storage tank split a seam because of the heat, and spewed fuel throughout the area. Another tank was reported steaming and its paint peeling off.

Many homes in a government housing area on a bluff above the fuel storage depot were evacuated.

This appeared to introduce a new element into the conflict, which was already going badly for the United States, primarily because of political dissension in Saigon and the instability of South Vietnamese governments.

In earlier years U.S. officials always claimed that the guerrillas fighting in South Viet Nam were essentially South Vietnamese though some had been trained in the North.

The alternatives to the present course of supporting the Vietnamese government, Bundy said, lie between withdrawal or "neutralization" on the one hand and enlarging the war on the other.

"So long as South Viet Nam is ready to carry on the fight, withdrawal is unthinkable," Bundy said.

Of negotiation, he declared that any course which led to true security and independence for South Viet Nam in accordance with international agreements "would of course be an answer." But he ruled out any negotiation that would let South Viet Nam be taken over by the Communists sooner or later.

Huong Urges End To Violence Following Book Burning In Hue

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Antigovernment demonstrators burned books Saturday in a U.S. Information Agency library in Hue, 400 miles north of here, smashed all the building's windows and ransacked offices.

Premier Tran Van Huong urged his people "not to be dragged into this monkey business" in a desperate radio appeal to halt the growing violence.

"At this solemn hour, the life of the nation is in the people's hands," he said.

Buddhist-led demonstrators took to the streets for the second straight day in Hue and Saigon and there was a report of a protest march involving several thousand persons in the city of Nha Trang, 200 miles northeast of Saigon. The crowds dispersed by evening but more trouble was expected Sunday.

There was widespread speculation that Communist agents have infiltrated the Buddhist campaign to oust Huong and were using demonstrations as a cover for attacks on American installations.

The U.S. consul in Hue, Samuel Thompson, reported that he felt the attack on the USIS building was caused by a group separate from the main body of 3,000 demonstrators.

"The Viet Cong encourage people to demonstrate and sit in the streets," Huong said in his radio address. "They hire hoodlums to demonstrate at the U.S. Embassy among other places. They threw stones at the police and at the cultural service of a friendly country."

"They did this with the object of breaking up an international friendship. They did this disguised as monks leading a group of curious persons."

The mob in Hue surged into the agency building, drenched about half the library's books with gasoline and set them afire, officials reported.

Then they sacked the top floor of the building, extensively damaging the offices of the Viet Nam American Association, a private group that sponsors study programs for Vietnamese students. Cost of the damage has not been assessed.

Witnesses said there was no apparent effort by police or troops to quell the attack.

Earlier, about 100 Buddhist monks and nuns presented a letter at the U.S. Consulate, addressed to President Johnson and calling for an end of American support of the Huong government.

In Saigon, a monk plunged a knife into himself but apparently was not seriously injured. The Buddhists have threatened to renew the wave of fire suicides that led to the ouster of the Ngo Dinh Diem government in November 1963.

Paratroopers clashed with about 800 demonstrators at Saigon's Buddhist headquarters and squads patrolled potential trouble spots in the wake of Friday's unrest. A mob of youths inside the headquarters compound tried to take to the streets but the paratroopers pushed them back, hurling about 20 tear gas grenades at them.

Five monks inside the compound went into the fourth day of a protest hunger strike.

WOMAN TALKS CAT OUT OF WALL

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—The cat was out of the wall Saturday at Sand Lake elementary school. Feminine patience and persuasion did it.

Betty Putnam, fourth-grade teacher at Sand Lake, put on a pair of gloves and sat quietly at the 18-inch-square opening in the library wall. That's the inspection hole where the big black cat slipped in a week ago and spurned all efforts at eviction.

"She just kept talking to him in a soft voice," school Principal Gordon Parker reported.

"She kept going back in there during recesses and free time. She got to playing with him and talking with him. She offered him salami."

Finally the cat slapped playfully at her gloved hands. Then it got close enough for her to grab it.

"It was a big relief for Parker. 'I must have had a hundred million questions asked about it,' he said, 'including telephone calls from as far away as Detroit.'"

The cat got into the 35-foot-long, cat-size space while an inspection plate was left off. Baited traps were found neatly sprung. Nothing worked until Mrs. Putnam put on her gloves.

"Well, I'd like to find a good home for it," said Parker. "It's a beautiful cat and I've no idea who it belongs to."

REPORT RED TROOPS ARE MASED ALONG HIMALAYAN BORDER

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—A Tibetan monk who fled to Nepal said Saturday the Communist Chinese have massed 30,000 well-equipped soldiers along the Himalayan borders, poised for the "liberation of Asia."

Nagawang Thudob, 51, of the Tshi Lhunpo Monastery at Shigatse, Tibet said Chinese troops told him:

"We are getting ready to liberate Asia from the clutches of the imperialists and colonialists."

He told a news conference here Peking is circulating documents in Tibet which read:

"India is nothing but a paper tiger. First of all it is our plan to conquer India so we can get all the materials we need for our military to further our Asian plans. Tibet has become useful to us as a military bridgehead and springboard for our attack on India, but Tibet lacks many supplies for our army."

He said other monks had been whipped and forced to work as laborers to build military roads — all leading southward to India and Nepal.

108 CATHOLIC MISSIONARIES LOST LIVES IN CONGO

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The total of Roman Catholic missionaries slain in the Congo since the territory became independent on June 30, 1960, has risen to 108, the International Fides Service reported Saturday. Fides is an official publication of the Vatican's Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith.

Churchill Takes Turn For Worse

LONDON (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill's condition took a turn for the worse Saturday night and a medical spokesman said, "I think he must be moving toward the end."

Lord Moran, 82, Churchill's friend and physician said, "The deterioration in Sir Winston's condition is more marked."

Commenting on this 19th medical bulletin issued since the 90-year-old statesman was hit by a stroke Jan. 15, a spokesman for the British Medical Association said: "This is what we expected and I think he must be moving towards the end."

Sir Winston, Britain's wartime leader, has been lying in his Hyde Park Gate home in the twilight between life and death for more than a week.

Since the series of medical bulletins started on Jan. 15, there has not been a word of encouragement concerning his condition.

Flu Epidemic Hits Leningrad

MOSCOW (AP)—Leningrad, the Soviet Union's second-largest city, has been struck by a virulent flu epidemic, according to reliable reports reaching here Saturday.

These sources said the epidemic has felled several thousand persons a day for the past week. Up to a third of the city's working force was reported out sick.

Schools were closed in the middle of this week and all unessential travel to or from the city has been discouraged.

Informed sources said medical authorities have not yet determined whether the virus is of the Asian flu variety.

Medical specialists here last autumn predicted especially severe outbreaks of the flu in the Soviet Union this winter. Flu epidemics here usually run in cycles of from three to four years.

The epidemic has not been reported in the Soviet press. Only Leningrad radio was said to have broadcast instructions to the population for preventive measures and for the care and treatment of flu victims.

There have been no reports of fatalities connected with the outbreak.

PLAN "SPACE-X '70" EXPOSITION IN TEXAS

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—A group of Texas Gulf Coast businessmen announced plans Saturday for a $175-million international exposition to be held in 1970.

The fair will be a "Space, Oil, Petroleum-Chemical Exposition," shortened to "Space-X '70."

Dr. Robert P. Green, Texas City, president of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, said the exposition will be housed under a 218-acre roof, midway between Houston and Galveston.

Condition Not Believed Serious First Lady Admitted As Patient

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson is in the hospital with a bad hacking cough and a pain in his chest, but he says this is no cause for alarm.

"I wouldn't hesitate right now to put on my britches and go back to the office if there was something that needed to be done," Johnson told reporters Saturday about his sudden illness.

In a gesture typical of Johnson, he called four newsmen in at noon Saturday for a surprise bedside news conference. They found him hoarse but resplendent in fireman's red pajamas trimmed in black, with a white handkerchief peeping from the breast pocket.

He began to feel bad Friday night, "primarily from the tickling in my throat," the President said. His temperature went up, so at 2:26 a.m. Saturday an ambulance took him from the White House to the National Naval Medical Center in Bethesda, Md.

Of the congestion in his throat, the President said: "I notice it's a little better now."

His throat had been soothed by an old-fashioned cough syrup, "Brown's Mixture," and he is expected to be hospitalized anywhere from three to five days.

Although the President had the best in medical attention — a specialist had been summoned from New York in the middle of the night — he had his own version of what had gone wrong.

"My resistance was awfully low," he said. He had been working long hours on his messages to Congress — his big budget message goes up to Capitol Hill Monday — and he had neither napped nor lunched the last two days.

"It may be a lesson I ought to learn," he said. He didn't finish the sentence, but he obviously meant that he thinks he should be a little more careful in the future. (Continued On Page Nine)

Two Solons Offer Data On Bribery In Legislature

CHICAGO (AP)—State Rep. Anthony Scariano, D-Park Forest, said Saturday that he and State Sen. Paul Simon, D-Troy, have given the Illinois Crime Investigating Commission information on bribery in the state legislature.

Simon and Scariano said they gave written and oral statements Friday to the commission's executive director, Charles Siragusa. Siragusa said the commission met in secret Saturday to consider the information.

Siragusa declined to reveal if the commission had decided to investigate. But he said commission co-chairman Prentice Marshall would probably communicate with Simon and Scariano "within a day or so" on the results of the meeting.

Simon coauthored an article in a national magazine last fall in which he accused at least one-third of the state legislators with indulging in corrupt practices, including bribery. (Continued On Page Nine)

LBJ Had Hectic Week, Crammed With Work, Ceremonies, Parties

WASHINGTON (AP)—Last week which saw President Johnson end up in the hospital Saturday was a hectic one, crammed with work, ceremonies and parties.

Inauguration day was a particularly fast-paced one. The President was on the go from early Wednesday morning until nearly 12:30 a.m. Thursday. Moreover, he exposed himself to chill weather and drafts, without a topcoat.

The President likes to take afternoon naps but inauguration day shattered that routine. He got up early to attend interfaith church services, and from then on it was a ceaseless round.

Despite moderately cold weather, he took the oath at the Capitol without a topcoat; stood for almost three hours in the reviewing stand at the White House, without a hat or topcoat; and danced that night at five inaugural balls.

Though both the inaugural stand and the reviewing stand were warmed by electric heaters, they were still chilly and drafty. In the reviewing stand, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey put on his coat and scarf for a while.

Besides the round of inaugural festivities, which began Monday, Johnson spent much time during the week working on the inaugural address, the budget message to Congress and economic reports.

Here are some high spots of last week:

Monday — The President looked in briefly on two dinners of the President's Club; then attended the big Democratic gala at the National Guard Armory.

Tuesday — Besides much work, he attended a governor's reception; the inaugural concert, and a champagne supper at the State Department. He got home shortly before 1 a.m.

Wednesday — The long inaugural day. Before he left the last inaugural ball, he joshingly admonished everybody to get up early the next day to press on toward the "Great Society."

Thursday — Taking his own advice seriously, he was up early, summoning congressional leaders to the White House for conferences on his legislative program.

Friday — A similarly arduous day, toward the end of which the President began to feel the effects of a cold which caused his hospitalization Saturday morning.

Storms Lash Most Of Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A Pacific storm raked the West Coast northward from San Francisco with whole gale winds Saturday while the eastern half of the nation battled snow, sleet and freezing rain.

The fierce winds in the west, reaching 55 knots off Cape Mendocino, blew slanting sheets of heavy rain over two counties ravaged by the Christmas-week flood.

Blizzards lashed parts of Kansas, Texas and Oklahoma and heavy snow clogged highways and streets in Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Michigan and Wisconsin.

Hazardous driving conditions prevailed throughout the Midwest and the Northeast. Heavy thunderstorms rumbled through the South. High winds raked the nation's midsection as a storm raced across the plains toward the Great Lakes.

As temperatures dipped below freezing in northern Illinois, streets, walks and highways became coated with ice. Driving was hazardous, traffic was slowed down and buses and commuter trains were delayed.

The weather potpourri included a snowstorm that dropped up to eight inches on western New York and another that buried Norcraft, in northwestern Kansas, with a foot of snow. Atwood and Oberlin, Kan., had six inches of snow. Other points in central and western Kansas measured up to four inches.

In lower Michigan snow drifts piled up three feet deep, while other parts of the state had a sleet, snow and freezing rain. Many doors and windows on homes and autos in the Detroit area were sealed shut by icy coatings.

Strong winds piled up huge drifts of snow in many areas. Some highways in the upper Texas Panhandle were blocked with four-foot drifts. There was three inches of snow in Amarillo, Tex., and wind gusts up to 50 miles an hour caused hazardous blizzard conditions in a wide area.

Southern Minnesota had up to three inches of snow and North Platte, in western Nebraska, recorded nine inches.

Mobile, Ala., recorded three inches of rain in a few hours and Montgomery, Ala., got two inches.

FIRE, RAIN, FOG TIES UP TRAFFIC AT LINCOLN

LINCOLN, Ill. (AP)—A $2,000 fire at the Tropics Restaurant on the Northwest Side, Lincoln added Saturday to difficulties of rain and fog smothered motorists on Route 66.

Power was cut off, putting out the traffic lights regulating intersecting traffic on Routes 121 and 122.

Firemen ran hoses across the highways.

State police rerouted motorists along a service lane to pass the firefighting activity.

Firemen brought the flare under control within an hour. The fire apparently was started by a short circuit in an electric fan.

India's President Receives Visitors At His Bedside

NEW DELHI (AP) — The young army aide clicked his highly polished heels together and barked through his bristling moustache: "The president will see you."

Striding down a corridor, he pushed open a door leading into a room filled with hundreds of books and documents, newspapers, tea cups, several clocks and a large bed.

And there, solidly ensconced in the middle of the bed, was President Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan of India, one of those rare men who look majestic even while sitting in bed at 5:30 in the afternoon.

It was a typically busy afternoon for the 76-year-old "grand old man" of India and he was receiving visitors at bedside as usual.

This bed is President Radhakrishnan's work table and when not touring India or appearing at official functions, he normally is in it — surrounded by his beloved books and, with increasing frequency these days, anxious politicians.

For at an age when most men are content idly to watch the passing parade, President Radhakrishnan is bringing a new dimension, a new importance to his office.

Constitutionally and traditionally, the president of India is a figurehead official who dedicates bridges and has tea with visiting heads of state while the prime minister runs the country.

But President Radhakrishnan unmistakably changed that when Prime Minister Nehru died last May 27. In an unprecedented move, the president jumped into politics to control the succession battle that soon erupted.

He called India's top politicians to his bedside and declared a quick, smooth transition to new leadership was necessary if India's internal stability was to be preserved. He also threw his considerable prestige behind the leading and eventually successful contender: Lal Bahadur Shastri.

In the tumultuous months since then, President Radhakrishnan has greatly increased his appearances throughout the nation, giving India's millions visible proof of the government's presence in what is a time of great political unrest and economic hardship.

He speaks at medical colleges, before massed regiments of the army — anywhere that provides a forum for his message: Believing in God and working together, Indians will survive this period of torment.

And in the quiet of his bedroom, the nation's leaders gather to ask his counsel. Shastri himself comes to sit at the president's bedside.

President Radhakrishnan is newer to politics by far than he is to philosophy. His reputation as a writer and philosopher is international.

Nehru pulled him into the mainstream of political life in independent India, naming him ambassador to the Soviet Union in 1949. In 1952, he was elected vice president and in 1962, president.

Today, President Radhakrishnan, a widower, is very much a part of the mainstream. It sometimes swirls around his bedside.

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Now it turns out that Adam Cartwright will not end up on Boot Hill in "Bonanza." He'll merely disappear into the sunset.

Adam is played by Pernell Roberts, long the dissident member of the Ponderosa quadrumvirate that includes Lorne Greene (Ben), Dan Blocker (Hoss) and Michael Landon (Little Joe). Pernell, stage-trained and serious-minded, has been at odds with the show's producers since the series began 5½ years ago.

The actor has argued that the characterizations on the show are lame, the scripts limp and the general quality aimed at a common level. When he announced that he would leave "Bonanza" at the end of this season, it was reported he would be killed off in his final script.

"Of course they don't let me in on their plans," he remarked, "but I understand now that Adam will merely go away on some mission or other. I presume that another character will be introduced in my place."

Pernell admitted that Mike Landon urged him to stay, and Dan Blocker has also made representations to him. No word from Lorne Greene.

"Lorne and I are not too compatible," Pernell commented. "Despite the pleas of the two 'Bonanza' brothers, he is unwilling in his plan to leave. His departure date is Feb. 22, and Pernell views it as something of a holiday."

His plans?
"I have none right now. Certainly I would like to get back to the theater. I would like to do films and television, too, as long as I can do something that has depth and meaning to it."

Reither On Beardstown

By VIRGIL REITHER

BEARDSTOWN — Announcement here of the recent marriage of Fredericka Weber, daughter of Fred Weber of this city, and Gerry Matthews in New York, heightens interest in the affairs of satirist Julius Monk, who hit the big time super club circuit 30 years ago.

The Beardstown girl, who has been busy in television and night club work in New York and Chicago, has worked in Monk-directed revues and now is the wife of one of the leading characters in Mr. Monk's latest, "Bits and Pieces" which is featured at the New York Plaza. Miss Weber's husband is one of six youthful talents in the cast.

Mr. Monk's revue plays twice nightly at Plaza 9—which is described as "an intimate room of deep Edwardian red velvet in the stately old Plaza Hotel."

It was in the Plaza that Monk hosted a reception for Miss Weber and Matthews following their wedding late in December.

Homeowners in Pakistan Christmas in Thailand was enjoyed by Captain Norma Jean Perlukas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Perlukas of this city. She has written of the thrills of seeing the Taj Mahal (one of the seven wonders of the world) and the beauties of Bangkok. Captain Perlukas, a registered nurse as a civilian, is stationed in Pakistan, but went to Thailand (Siam) on leave.

The paths of Miss Perlukas and Hamilton Treadway, a Beardstownian also living in Pakistan, have not yet crossed, however, since Treadway is at Karachi, many hundreds of miles from the Perlukas base.

Occupational Hazard Principal Charles Sullivan and Ken Christianson, also of the high school teaching complement, were burned when a pot of hot coffee was accidentally spilled on them in a local cafe the other day.

Illness Closes Shop The Walters barber shop on Fourth street has been closed for more than a week due to the illness of the veteran operator, Glee Walters. He's been in the business for a half century. Members of the local Barbers Union say, however, that Glee has no intention of retiring and intends to be back on the job as soon as he is able to work.

Sleep is more vital to man than food since he can survive longer without food.

East Germany's Top Scientist Has Long List Of Achievements

By PRESTON GROVER
DRESDEN, East Germany (AP) — East Germany's most prominent scientist, with a long list of achievements, likes it to be known that he is both a baron and a Marxist.

Manfred von Ardenne lives in a handsome scientific community of his own making above this city, in a cluster of fine old houses and new buildings surrounded by pines and beech trees.

Iron gates opened automatically at the top of a driveway that plunges down a steep slope to the front of what looks like a fine old mansion. Inside it is part old world elegance and part ultramodern machine shop and scientific laboratory.

Here Ardenne works at the head of a group of 250 selected scientists and technicians.

Ardenne is a self-assured man, about 5 feet 8, blondish but growing bald, plays tennis, skis and has a methodical work schedule from which he varies only under pressure. For two hours each morning he reads, almost entirely scientific works.

"There are masses of them from all countries, including the United States," he says.

Then he spends an hour over the mail, and starts his round of supervision of the plant or working on his own pet projects.

Lately he has turned most of his attention to research in medical fields. He designed a tiny transistor that can be swallowed by an ailing patient. Then it sends signals showing not only where it is but to some extent what it finds. These are picked up by an antenna in the form of a wire-lined shirt the patient wears.

A greater and more current interest is in the refinement of electro-measurements which he feels will contribute to the study of cancer, particularly if it can help in determining the quantity of chemicals which may edge in a particular cancer area. His laboratories are testing chemicals on mice, trying to find some means of increasing the concentration of curative chemicals where the cancer is.

Ardenne says he has not yet seen much progress in getting the chemicals to poison cancer cells and leave the others alone.

At the beginning of the interview he was restrained and tense, and it was days later when I learned the probable reason. A senior scientific official of East Germany, Prof. Heinz Barwich, head of the Central Institute of Nuclear Research at Rosendorf, near Dresden, had just defected to the West.

Ardenne probably expected a flood of questions, especially since Klaus Fuchs, sentenced for espionage for transmitting British nuclear secrets to the Russians, had gone there after his release from prison in England.

But while Ardenne doubtless knew about Barwich's defection, I didn't. Not a line of the three-day-old news had been published in the East German press.

While I could not ask him about Barwich, I did ask him about Fuchs. Ardenne said he seemed to be getting along well and seemed contented. He sees Fuchs regularly, since they belong to the same club in Dresden. He said Fuchs lives quietly. He did not say whether he was continuing the research he was conducting in the nuclear center in England where he was arrested for espionage.

Later Ardenne's mood eased and we got down to the subject I wanted to discuss, how he as a scientist found conditions of work in a Communist state. He speaks English quite well.

We walked together from laboratory to laboratory, from private study to places where two or three persons were working on projects.

There were a swimming pool and a luxurious conference room with a marble top table and chairs to match.

"Is deep research likely in such beautiful surroundings?" I asked.

"Scientists work best in good conditions," he said.

Ardenne said he found his life good, free from interference. He had worked as a scientist during the Hitler regime and he finds it much better now in East Germany than in those older times.

As a scientist, his talents have always been directed toward practical ends, and his success in that direction has been great. He has taken out about 450 patents, the first one when he was only 16. As a precocious student in a technical school he invited a device for refining reception of radio waves. That was in 1923.

In his autobiography he gave 20 pages to a tabulation of events of his life, most items being scientific accomplishments or honors received.

The first paragraph in that autobiography is: "Jan. 20, 1907, I was born in Hamburg as the eldest son of over-lieutenant and government official, Egmont Baron von Ardenne."

He noted that in 1941, during the war, he was engaged in "secret work" but did not explain what it was.

He worked throughout the Hitler regime but at the end of the war was one of the scientists who chose to go to the Soviet Union instead of to the West. He flew to Moscow two weeks after the armistice in May 1945, and remained in the U.S.S.R. until 1951, primarily at the Institute for Electronic Physics at Sukhumi, on the Black Sea.

When he came back he was given almost immediately authority to form the scientific institute at Weisser Hirsch, the woody suburb of Dresden. The institute bears his name.

As long ago as 1930 he had patented a television tube in the United States and elsewhere. It is in the field of electronics that his major scientific work has been done. If he had a part in development of the atom bomb in the Soviet Union, it did not come out in our conversation, and seems not to have been suggested in any works about him.

New Method Has 45th Anniversary

On Wednesday, Jan. 20, the employees of New Method Book Bindery observed the 45th anniversary of the Corporation.

Lawrence D. Sibert

Lawrence D. Sibert, founder of the firm, was presented a Revere bowl, engraved to note the occasion, along with cards and letters of appreciation. Former employees, now associated with the Hertzberg-New Method Plant, also joined in the occasion.

On January 20, 1920, a new Library Book Bindery was born in Jacksonville. The name "new method" came from a process which added much strength and durability to the book volume. This process was patented in March of 1920.

Mr. Sibert, along with his partner William Suhy and a staff of one man and one girl, began operations in a second story room on South Main Street that previously had been the Degan Dance Hall.

Later, the Brown's Business College Building at 201 South Kosciusko was purchased and operation began there in 1923.

The Company moved to its present site, West Morton Road at Massey Lane, in 1959. Robert Sibert, who joined the firm in 1931, is now president and his father, Lawrence, is chairman of the board.

New Equipment Installed At Fast Car Wash

A complete battery of new equipment has been installed at Ray's Jiffy Car Wash on South Diamond according to E. E. and Larry Royer, owners of the business.

The equipment is designed to eliminate as much human error as possible. High pressure washing with warm water and a special wetting agent remove the bulk of the dirt from the sides and front. Later, a soft brush cleans the road film and other dirt without scratches or damage to a wax job.

Another machine generates a high volume of suds which cascade onto the top of the auto. The suds are scattered around by two men in rubber suits and wash gloves.

The really noticeable improvement in the quickie car wash business is handled after the rinse process. One machine scrubs tires and wheels while they are spinning, rinses and then the car moves through a dryer. The process is automatic and for good measure four high pressure outlets blast the underside of the auto with warm water and a rust inhibitor.

A large dryer blows the water off each auto as it passes, followed by a three or four-man crew who complete the finish work on glass, both inside and out.

You can watch each process from the cover of a glass-enclosed corridor or enjoy the four or five minutes in the waiting room.

At 73 Author Busy Doing What She Wants To Get Done In Life

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Now and then a man meets a lady he really feels honored to take his hat off to—even in a crowded public elevator.

Such a lady is Pearl Buck, one of the world's most admired women and the only member of her sex to win both a Nobel and a Pulitzer literary award.

Gray-haired, blue-eyed and matronly looking, Mrs. Buck is in her 73rd year.

"I decided not long ago during a trip to India that it was time for me to get done what I wanted to do in life," she remarked.

So she is taking dancing lessons, brushing up on French, and preparing to learn Spanish. She already knows Chinese, of course, and German.

She also is writing four new books, which will bring her lifetime total so far to 67. They include her famed "The Good Earth" and 35 other best-selling novels.

She also runs a film producing company.

She also heads the Pearl S. Buck Foundation, which is trying to raise $10 million to aid more than 300,000 unwanted Amerasian children fathered by U.S. troops in Japan, Korea, and other Far East lands.

As methodical as she is warm-hearted, Mrs. Buck writes from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. daily in her Pennsylvania farmhouse. She now prefers an old-fashioned pen to the typewriter.

"Whenever I find something in life that interests me, I want to write about it," she said. "Since I've had a varied life, that has meant many books. But I don't sit down to write until I feel I have something to say."

She lives modestly. Her biggest extravagance is hats.

"I'm really rather silly about hats. I buy five or six at one time."

She thinks most people who fail do so because they don't appreciate themselves—or others—enough.

"People are really much better than they think they are," she remarked. "In every human relationship there must be a respect for the other person—not as you would want him to be, but as he is."

This is her philosophy: "There are many kinds of love, but there must be some kind of love before there can be fulfillment—before there can be any progress, any fruit, or any content."

Through all her literary labors, her heart's ear has been attuned to the cries of the world's handicapped or forgotten children. Mother of a retarded child herself, she has adopted and reared nine other children, including several of mixed Asian and American ancestry.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market last week made record highs in the averages as it stretched its current rally through the fourth straight week.

Analysts saw the continued strength as evidence of heavy reinvestment of the proceeds of year-end selling as 1964 drew to a close, supported by a greater air of confidence in Wall Street.

As trading began last week, The Associated Press average had already scored an historic high while the Dow Jones industrial average and Standard & Poor's index of 500 stocks were a shade below their previous peaks registered last November.

On the first day of trading all three averages climbed to new peaks. They repeated this on Tuesday. The market then faltered, turning in a mixed performance, with averages off slightly. Mild profit taking resumed on Thursday, with trading slower and the market down definitely but not to any great extent.

Trading was faster on Friday when the list made a moderate rally, ending the week on the uptick.

The rise to new highs was regarded as the end of a two-month period of consolidation which followed the previous peak made in November.

Trading was quite active most of the time, the week's volume totaling 36,917,740 shares compared with 28,149,370 the week before.

The Dow Jones industrial average ended the week with a net gain of 2.44 at 899.59. Its closing record was established Tuesday when it reached 896.27.

At that point, the Street began talking again of an assault upon the latest "magic number" of 900 in the Dow index. It was widely discussed as a "psychological barrier." The near approach to that level seemed to engender some selling merely because of fear that traders would regard it as a likely point at which to take profits.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks last week rose 1.1 to 333.9, its fourth straight weekly advance. The AP average made a closing record of 334.1 on Tuesday.

Standard & Poor's made a new closing peak of 86.74 on Friday, leading the other averages as the AP average did in the previous week.

Of 1,538 issues traded last week, 791 rose and 560 fell.

Bond prices advanced last week.

On the New York Stock Exchange bond volume for the week totaled a par value of $33,046 million, compared to $32,512 million the previous week.

LBJ IN HOSPITAL WITH COLD, COUGH

Although his medical histories never mentioned it, Johnson said he has had pneumonia six or eight times, and that he thinks he has more trouble with colds than most people.

All the Johnsons were outdoors for the big inaugural ceremonies Wednesday, and the President didn't wear a topcoat either for his speech or for the five balls he attended that night. His physicians refused to make any direct connection between the inauguration and the presidential cold, but three out of four of the Johnsons are feeling poorly.

Mrs. Johnson and their daughter Lynda Bird, 20, came down with colds Friday, and had gone to Camp David, Md., so they could keep the President from catching their germs. Johnson figures that's where he got the bug, though.

The other Johnson daughter, Luci Baines, 17, went with her father to the hospital, riding in the same ambulance. And she sat beside him during his impromptu news conference, patting him when he coughed.

Mrs. Johnson and Lynda Bird returned from Camp David Saturday, and after checking in with the President settled down to get medication of their own.

Mrs. Johnson was admitted as a patient, and assigned a room near the President. Lynda Bird returned to the White House where she expects to spend the weekend in bed.

Although Johnson's ailment was diagnosed as minor, any illness of the President is worrisome, especially when he has had a serious heart attack, as Johnson did in 1955.

Mrs. Johnson and Lynda Bird left for the Maryland mountains late Friday afternoon.

The President had felt a slight tickling in his throat about 4 p.m., but he had gone ahead with his work.

By 9 p.m. the tickling and coughing became worse, and although his heart, temperature and respiration were normal, he decided to go to bed.

Around 1 a.m. Johnson awoke, found his cough much worse, and called his physician, Rear Adm. George G. Burkley.

As a precaution, Burkley called an ambulance. As it turned out, Burkley said later, the President really didn't need it, but since it was there, why not use it?

The President, wearing his bathrobe, climbed in, and Luci and Burkley got in the back. They arrived at the naval hospital at 2:50 a.m. and Johnson was in his room on the 17th floor by 2:55 a.m.

During the night Dr. W. J. Gould, a New York throat specialist who had treated Johnson during last fall's presidential campaign, was called in.

Gould and Burkley checked over Johnson for 45 minutes Saturday morning. Their verdict: "nonspecific tracheitis," or inflammation of the trachea caused by a germ as yet unidentified. Burkley said that this could be translated from medical terms to "a common cold."

During the night Johnson's temperature went as high as 101, but given an antibiotic and aspirin, it came down to 100.4 at 7:30 a.m., to 99.6 at 10 a.m. A vaporizer helped ease the dryness in Johnson's throat and nose. At a televised news conference Saturday, Dr. Burkley said his patient is getting along fine, that electrocardiograms show no change in his heart, and that he'd like to keep the President in the hospital for five days but that he may insist on going home sooner.

While the medical excitement was at its peak, the rest of the government went on as usual. Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, after checking with the White House, went on to fill a slot in St. Paul, Minn., where he was grand marshal in the winter carnival parade.

Two Solons Offer Data On Bribery In Legislature

Scariano said that "probably less than a dozen" legislators were involved. He refused to name them, saying, "We told Siragusa we would not try these cases in the papers. I think we owe him that favor."

Scariano said he and Simon would reveal names publicly if the commission decided to investigate further. He said he was "sure they'll want to go into it" because "I think they have enough right now to indicate that we are not spouting off."

"I would say the more serious charges involve race tracks," Scariano said.

Those he would accuse of taking bribes would be both Democrats and Republicans, senators and representatives from all parts of the state, he added.

Scariano and Simon were two of eight legislature members who Saturday won "best legislator" awards from the Independent Voters of Illinois.

Wood River Throws Scare Into Crimsons

By AL KOCH
The Jacksonville Crimsons, fresh from an important 72-58 win over 10th ranked Quincy Friday night, squeaked past the Wood River Oilers here Saturday evening 77-76, in a hair raising battle that was not decided until the very last second.

Guard Terry Brown of the visiting Oilers, who turned in an outstanding 27-point performance in the near upset, took a fifteen foot side jump shot in the last second, but the ball glanced off the rim as the final buzzer sounded.

Jacksonville lost two of its starters through fouls, with scoring ace Creston Whitaker leaving the game with 2:39 left to play, and playmaking guard Dennis Sergeant fouling out with :39 to go.

The ball game was tied 10 times before the final quarter saw a one point lead change hands between the two clubs twelve times.

Whitaker led the Crimsons in their 14th win with 27 tallies, but forward Ron Coleman hit the winning bucket on a fine side jump shot with :08 showing in the game and backed Whitaker's leading effort up with 22 additional points.

The Jacks opened play with a quick two pointer by Dennis Wegehoff, but the Oilers pumped in a free throw by Wayne Heine and a bucket by Mike Brown from his guard spot to jump into a 3-2 lead.

The game proceeded to a 7-7 draw on an underneath shot by Whitaker.

Take Early Lead
The Wood River outfit then held a slight lead until with 1:02 showing on the first period clock, Whitaker netted a one shot toss from the charity stripe.

Whitaker then hit a two point side set shot to put the Jacks into a 19-17 lead with :21 remaining.

Wood River's Brown hit two from the keyhole to send both teams into a 19-19 first quarter deadlock.

Whitaker then fouled Brown with 2:39 remaining in the ball game and was forced to leave because of his quota of five infractions.

Brown made good both of his attempts to put the Oilers ahead 74-71.

Seageant pumped in a key-hole set shot to leave the Crimsons down by one, 74-73.

With :33 showing on the game clock, the Crimsons called a time out.

Brown missed his first shot on the one and one situation and the Crimsons gained possession.

Dean Hess who had come in to replace Sergeant got the ball out of bounds with the clock running off fast.

Coleman got the ball on the side and pumped in a two point set shot for the winning margin, 77-76.

Brown dribbled down court with several seconds to go and shot a jumper from the fifteen foot mark, but had it hit the rim and fall off for the Crimsons victory.

Central in their win was led by forward Dennis Hogan who pumped through 25, and forward Paul Reuschel who aced 15.

The Central outfit led for most of the game with leads ranging from three to twelve points.

Carver tied the contest up with :20 left to play on a shot by red hot shooter Maxey.

Maxey then fouled Blivens with :12 to go, and the Central guard made both of his charity tosses good to put the Camp Pointers back in the game.

Russell fired a jump shot from 25 feet out but missed with :08 showing on the final period clock.

OKLAHOMA STATE ACE UNDERGOES 2ND OPERATION ON ARM

The 6-foot-9 former Oklahoma State basketball ace's right arm was torn off above the elbow in a laundry machine at Stillwater.

The arm was re-implanted in a six-hour operation Nov. 2.

The second operation Thursday was to rejoin major nerves severed in the accident. Swaffar was up and about Friday.

He is expected to be able to return to classes in less than two weeks.

The hospital spokesman said it may be a year before doctors know how much normal use of the arm can be returned to Swaffar.

One nerve still has not been rejoined. Doctors said they are contemplating a third operation.

4 Grand Prix Drivers Entered In Daytona Run

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla.—Four internationally known Grand Prix drivers, three from the U.S. and one from New Zealand, are among the men named to handle the big Shelby-American Ford Cobra entry for the fourth running of the Daytona Continental at Daytona International Speedway on Feb. 28.

The American internationalists chosen to drive the Cobras in the 2000-kilometer (1243 miles) event for sports, prototype and GT cars are Dan Gurney, Richie Ginther and Ronnie Bucknum. The foreigner is 20-year-old Chris Amon of New Zealand, youngest of all the drivers on the Grand Prix circuit.

In announcing the driver list, Ken Miles, competition director of the California Cobra firm, also increased the team entry to seven by entering a 5300cc sports car. He had already named four Cobra GTs and two prototypes.

Other drivers named by Miles to handle the powerful Cobras were Ed Leslie, Allen Grant, Lloyd Ruby, Bob Johnson, Bob Bonard, Jo Schleser, French champion, and Miles himself. These men are among the best drivers of sports cars in the world.

Three more drivers will have to be selected by Cobra, for the Continental's length—it is the longest race in America—requires two men to a car, one driving, one resting. The race starts at 10 a.m., and requires more than 12 hours to complete. The Continental is run on the Speedway's demanding 3.1-mile course, a layout that combines the high-banked turns and straights of the Speedway, with the winding infield road. Much of the race is run at night, and the sight of the speeding cars on the Speedway's turns is one of the most spectacular in sports.

The Continental carries posted awards of $33,750, is fully sanctioned by FIA-ACCUS, and counts toward the manufacturer's world championship. It annually brings together the fastest high performance cars of Europe and the U.S. The field is limited to 60 cars.

Penske Has That Midas Touch For His Business And Driving

By SANDY PADWE
NEW YORK — (NEA) — Roger Penske is a button-down version of Sammy Glick — maybe not as ruthless, but just as shrewd and certainly just as ambitious.

Penske, at 27, is retiring from sports car racing and he's going into his own business (he just bought the third largest auto dealership in Philadelphia).

"It is a great opportunity," he said. "My business does over a million a month in sales."

Roger Penske

Penske was doing his talking in the dining room of the Plaza Hotel where he seemed to blend perfectly with the regal surroundings except for one thing — his sport coat. It was light brown.

All the other businessmen breakfasting there, heads buried in the financial pages, sported matching dark suits, matching dark vests, matching dark ties and matching minds.

But Roger Penske never could be a conformist. Ideas and plans flow from his mind like oil gushing from a wildcat well.

This is the way it was during his racing days and this is the way it will be in business.

His racing career — which spanned seven years — was based on solid planning and little else except his tremendous driving ability.

PROVIDENCE STAYS UNBEATEN, DEFEATS SETON HALL, 88-61

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Sixth-ranked Providence, clinging to its status as the nation's only major unbeaten basketball power, stretched its string of victories to 12 Saturday night by defeating Seton Hall 88-61.

Again led by Jim Walker, who poured in 25 points, the Friars quickly shook off the rust of the two-week midyear examination layoff and built up a 52-35 halftime bulge.

As it turned out, they needed it.

Dexter Westbrook fouled out early and in a spree Seton Hall outscored the home forces 16-5 and pulled to within eight points 70-62.

The Pirates got to within 82-77 with 1:25 to go. Bill Blair's two free throws eased Providence tension but Tony Cuccolo got those two back. Walker sank two free throws and the issue was settled.

Cuccolo and Harrison Slaton paced Seton Hall with 21 points each.

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Wind of 30 miles an hour or more didn't faze Ed Merrins on the 110-yard seventh hole at Pebble Beach Saturday in the Bing Crosby Golf Tournament.

The Los Angeles pro got a hole in one, using a No. 3 iron.

BIG STINK IN ROTTERDAM

ROTTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — There was a big stink in Rotterdam Saturday. A cargo of Copra — dried coconut meat — aboard the Norwegian freighter Tobon was smoldering in the harbor despite the best efforts of fireboats, and Dutchmen a mile away complained about the stench.

MacMurray College freshman class is supporting the tournament as its community service project.

Sunstroke Beats Favorite To Win At Hialeah Park

By GENE PLOWDEN
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Sunstroke rushed into the lead soon after the start and won the $30,900 Royal Palm handicap at Hialeah Park Saturday as Chateaugay, 7-5 favorite with the crowd of 24,035, finished fifth.

Sunstroke, bearing 118 pounds with William Boland booting him in, ran the seven furlongs in 1:23 1-5 on a fast track and finished five lengths in front.

Joseph M. Roebeling's Rainy Lake was second, Harbor View Farm's Merry E. was third and Knightly Manner was fourth in the field of eight.

Sunstroke, running as an entry with Big End, paid $11.20, $6.20 and $4.80. Rainy Lake was $8.80 and $6.00, while the show price on Merry E. was $6.

Chateaugay, winner of the Kentucky Derby and Belmont Stakes in 1963 but out most of last season with a recurring ankle injury, was making his second start of the winter. He shouldered 126 pounds after winning a six-furlong allowance race last Saturday.

With Ray Broussard substituting for suspended Jockey Braulio Baeza, Chateaugay's regular rider, the chestnut horse was seventh until they turned into the stretch. He showed some run to the finish line but was more than eight lengths behind the winner.

Sunstroke earned $20,085 for his first effort.

Jack J. Dreyfus, owner of Sunstroke, bought the horse last April for $18,000. The 5-year-old bay son of Tim Tam out of Sienna II by Combat raced 26 times last year and was in the money 17 of them, earning $63,690.

FROSTY MARCH OF DIMES

WALK NETS $1,650

ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP) — Dick Green, farm director of station WJRL, Rockford, completed a frosty 26-mile hike from Freeport to Rockford today — a hike that brought in $1,650 in pledges to the March of Dimes.

Sleet, ice and snow made conditions miserable for Green, who walked along a WJRL mobile unit. The long march took nearly 11 hours.

Green had left Freeport at 5:30 this morning, ready to walk a mile for each $100 pledged to the March of Dimes. The pledges were made by persons calling the radio station.

After the walk, Green entered a Rockford hospital for a quick checkup and went to his nearby home. He said he felt fine.

LOS ANGELES — (NEA) — When Gail Goodrich was in the 10th grade, he stood 5-1 and weighed 99 pounds and could spin a basketball on his fingertips like a top. A year later he was 5-7 and 120 pounds and playing with that basketball for Polytechnic High School in Los Angeles.

That's when John Wooden, the UCLA coach who gravitates toward poetry—both in the written word and motion—first saw him.

Now Gail is the All-American aspirant for coach Wooden's brilliant Uclans, No. 1 rated and defending national collegiate champs of the hardwoods. And he's still size-conscious at 6-1 and 170 pounds.

"All my life," admitted Gail, "people have told me I'm too small. But I like to drive and I love to rebound and it's always good to score on a big man. I found when you go up for the basket you just keep in balance and move the ball around."

"You can push off a little bit, too—if the referee's not looking."

Gail looks slender and almost frail (they call him "Twig") among the pine tops who inhabit basketball, but he gets his 25 points a game. And coach Fred Schaus of the Los Angeles Lakers said last year he'd "make a helluva pro if he could just put on another inch." Gail is genuinely interested.

He sat sweating from a two and a half hour workout in the Men's Gymnasium on the Westwood campus, a fuzzy-faced 21-year-old who has to lead as well as score this year because Walt Hazzard, the Bruins' All-American playmaker, is gone.

Coach Wooden stood under a basket flipping the ball to his varsity in the foul shooting drill that climaxes practice and said, "I was the only coach who showed interest in him after I saw him in a city tournament. I thought I detected an Indiana type boy, like Lennie Rzeszewski, who played for me at Indiana State before I came out here."

Goodrich is a lot easier to pronounce and has the same ability to go without the ball that appealed to Wooden, who was trained in the Midwest as a playing great at Purdue and stresses the old-line tactics like "give-and-go."

Gail had a fine basketball heritage since his father was the captain of the Southern California basketball team in 1939. In fact, Forney Toogood, the present Trojan coach, was papa Goodrich's freshman basketball tutor at USC. But he didn't contact young Gail until the week before his high school graduation, by which time he was all locked up for the Westwood campus.

"I'd always wanted to go to USC," admitted Gail, "but I can't kick about what's happened."

How many kids get to be the top scorer on a national champion, as he was last year with a 21.5 average, a conference record for a backcourt man? He has tremendous drive and Wooden added, "He's one of the finest players I've ever seen at freeing himself when he doesn't have the ball. Goodrich is not a Hazzard, who took over our offense, nor is Hazzard a Goodrich. Gail is a better individual offensive player than Walt."

Basketball isn't the only outlet for his energies. In the spring he'd like to try baseball, to see if he could cut it as a first baseman in the pros. He tried it his sophomore year and hit only .200. He felt, however, out of his element.

At 6-1, he was big for that job.

Gail Goodrich

McIntyres Pace St. John's Win

NEW YORK (AP) — St. John's of New York, paced by the brothers McIntyre, whipped old foe St. Francis of Brooklyn 75-61 Saturday night and extended its winning string to eight straight.

Kenny McIntyre paced the eighth-ranked Redmen with 25 points while younger brother Bobby contributed 21. The victory boosted St. John's record to 12-2 and its over-all margin in the old, old series with St. Francis to 41-22.

St. John's, bothered by a zone defense, trailed 20-15 at the end of 12 minutes, then went on a 12-0 spree that put it out of reach. The Redmen held a 31-24 halftime margin.

ST. JOE'S RUNS WIN STREAK TO 15, DOWNS PENN 88-72

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Third-ranked St. Joseph's, with four of its five regulars hitting double figures, smashed Penn Saturday night 88-72 for its 15th victory in the second game of a basketball doubleheader at the Palestra before a sellout crowd of 9,220.

In the opener, two free throws by Bill Melchionni with four seconds left gave Villanova a 72-70 victory over Detroit.

St. Joseph's, defeated only once this season, was paced by Tom Duff with 22 points and Bill Oakes with 20.

Penn, now 8-6, tried to stay in the game behind the sharp-shooting of Jeff Neuman, who collected 29 points, 13 of them at the foul line.

The game was tied four times in the early minutes before the Hawks, down 14-13, scored 12 straight points to build up a lead they never lost.

St. Joseph's was ahead 41-30 at the half.

TOPS PREP HIGH JUMPS

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill McClellon of New York's DeWitt Clinton High School topped all national interscholastic high jump records Saturday with a leap of 6 feet 10 1/4 at the St. Francis Prep indoor games at the 102nd Engineers Armory.

McClellon, a 5-11, 153-pound junior, established the national indoor schoolboy mark of 6-9 1/2 last month. His performance, Saturday topped the schoolboy outdoors record of 6-9 1/2 held jointly by Walt Mangham of New Castle, Pa., and Dick Jones of Bakersfield, Calif., Ed Hanks of San Diego, Calif.

Governor To Present Fiscal Requirements At Tuesday's Session

By DICK EMERY
Statehouse Correspondent

The State Legislature gets down to business Tuesday when both houses reconvene after being recessed for the Presidential Inauguration last week.

Gov. Otto Kerner is scheduled to deliver his budget message and Republican leaders have promised to introduce their reapportionment bills.

Democrats unveiled their maps Jan. 6 when the legislative session opened.

Gov. Kerner came under a GOP barrage for delaying his budget message until Tuesday. Customarily, governors deliver this "State of the State" address to the joint session of the Legislature on the opening day of the session, which was Jan. 6.

Republican Rep. Harris Rowe, Jacksonville, said "it is unfortunate that the Governor waits until almost one-sixth of the legislative session is past before telling us of his money needs."

Robert Carls Dies Saturday At Beardstown

Helen Mayberry
Heart Fund

Mrs. Helen Mayberry, Morgan county treasurer, will be chairman of the Morgan County 1965 Heart Fund campaign announces Dr. Frank Marston, president of the Heart Association.

Mrs. Mayberry served as the 1964 Heart fund chairman. She has named David Denby, assistant trust officer at Farmers State Bank, as City chairman. Mr. Denby also served in 1964.

The campaign proceeds are used to fight heart and circulatory diseases which account annually for more than 54% of all the deaths in the United States.

Great advances have been made against heart and blood vessel diseases in the past years, since the Heart Association has become a volunteer organization. It is today known that some forms of the heart and blood vessel diseases can be prevented and many cured. Despite this progress heart and blood vessel diseases continue to be the nation's number one killer.

An all-out Heart Fund drive will be held Sunday, Feb. 21 when volunteers will conduct a door to door canvass throughout the county.

Paul E. Utterback, executive vice-president and director of the First National Bank of Jacksonville, has been appointed 1965 Crusade chairman of the Morgan County unit of the American Cancer Society, according to an announcement made by the unit chairman, Mrs. Robert F. Manlove.

A major purpose of the Crusade is to distribute literature to inform people about cancer—how they may help in the fight to control cancer, and how they may be alerted to protect themselves against cancer.

Mr. Utterback helped in the Bloomington-Normal Cancer Crusade before moving to Jacksonville last year.

Dead End For Stray Dogs Many Fail To Return From Pound

Allen Avenue dead ends north of East Oak street, and often is the end of the road for many a stray dog.

Since December 17, approximately 300 dogs have been rounded-up by the dog officer and about 150 have been exterminated.

In the building, which is 15' x 30' inside, there have been as many as 31 strays at the same time.

Saturday, the remains of a small dog could be seen in the field near the pound. Lester Oettle, dog officer, explained that the animal had been killed by the other dogs in the pound.

He said the young pup came to a Jacksonville residence on a December night in the midst of a severe sleet storm.

Occupants of the house brought the small pup in out of the cold and sheltered it for the night. Oettle was notified the following day and when he approached the house, he found the puppy bundled-up in a cardboard box on the front porch.

He found its badly mangled body Saturday morning inside the 15' x 16' section of the pound which contained seven dogs. The small hound had been the apparent victim of a brutal and savage attack by the other animals.

Oettle has been performing an efficient, unrewarding, and thankless job since being appointed by Mayor Byron Holkenbrink last December.

Stray Dog Round-up

He explained that when a stray is reported, he first tries to locate the owner and return the dog.

If he is notified a second time about the same animal, he will warn the owner, before a ticket is issued on the third visit.

Cost of a ticket can range between $2 and $200, however they have been varying from $5 to $10 Charles Runkel, chief of police, said.

When a dog is picked-up the rabies vaccination tag and the dog tag are the two means by which Oettle has to track the dog back to the owner.

If the dog has no identification, Oettle often is without a clue.

The animal is then transported to the pound. Oettle is required to post a description of the dog at police headquarters. If the dog is unclaimed at the end of 72 hours, then the dog officer is within the law to have it exterminated.

Means of extermination vary between a shotgun and a needle from a local veterinarian.

Delay Deadline

However, Oettle disclosed that if the animal appears to have come from a long line of the same breed of purebred dog, he will postpone the deadline often as long as three to four weeks in hopes the owner will show up.

When the owner, or anyone desiring to become a foster-parent to a stray dog, appears at the pound to claim an animal, he must pay the per day boarding charge.

Cost of boarding is 50c for a small animal and $1 for a large dog.

The jurisdiction of the pound was recently changed from the control of the municipal services committee to the public protection committee.

Chairman of the municipal services committee William Gross said that he had never seen a bill from a veterinarian during the two years the pound had been under the control of his committee.

"I've never seen any kind of a bill from a veterinarian to the committee," Gross related. "That is out of my control now. You should talk to Ray Birdsall. He's chairman of the public protection committee," he told a reporter.

Cold, Damp Pound

The pound is in sad condition. Inside of the brick building, there is an apparent lack of any kind of ventilation, unless the door is open when Oettle is present.

Animals shiver in the cold, wet interior of the building that is as strongly fortified from the outside as Fort Knox. Several years ago someone pried open one of the doors and allowed the inmates of the pound to escape.

Since that date, the doors and windows have been closed tightly with padlocks.

Local authorities hope that more residents, who would like to acquire a pet, will look into the possibility of acquiring one of the animals at the end of Allen Avenue.

DEAD END ROAD—The old brick building at the end of Allen Avenue, off of East Oak street, serves as the city dog pound, which has contained as many as 31 dogs at once.

NO ESCAPE—Over the years, pranksters have broken into the pound and allowed the inmates of the dark, damp building to escape. Recently, extra security precautions have been taken against the possibility of a recurrence as the door to the pound (pictured above) indicates.

WAITING FOR A HOME—Two young pups at the pound present a sad and sorrowful sight as they peer through the wire fence inside of the smelly pound.

LOOKING FOR A DOG—Although the owner of this car is advertising a dog for sale, he was out looking for one at the pound Saturday. Anyone interested in purchasing a dog from the pound is required to pay the 50c boarding fee to cover the cost of harboring the dog.

A Rule For Safety

The truism expressed in the old saw, "Accidents will happen," is matched by the more hopeful truism that whole areas of accident possibility can be ruled out through foresight. To illustrate: It can be said categorically that, except in the rarest of emergency situations, no parent need ever lay his family open to the kind of accident that may result when small children are left alone.

The specifics of the danger are not hard to imagine. Toddlers have great capacity to "get into things"—such things as poisonous household cleaning fluids, medicines, matches, scalding water left on the stove.

One often reads that a house fire was caused by children playing with matches while their mother had gone to the corner store for butter, or was off having coffee with a neighbor. Sometimes the fire is caught in time; sometimes the tots are found huddled together in death behind a bed or in a closet. One reads, too, of other kinds of accidents happening while parents are absent.

There is a simple preventative for such tragedy. Let parents follow the rule that they will never—repeat, never—leave small children at home alone. This will not bar all accidents, but it does cheat fate of many temptations.

Tire Standards Needed

It is well established that the federal government has a responsibility to protect the health and welfare of the public when this cannot be done by the states. The Food and Drug Administration's control over drug safety is but one of many ways in which this responsibility is met. When a gap in public safety becomes apparent federal regulation should be imposed to close the gap.

A case in point is provided by automobile tires. Though the industry does have minimum standards with which most manufacturers comply, some poor tires get to market. There are wide variations in quality and reliability. Since faulty tires may cause accidents, there is need for national tire standards and quality grading. These could only be made effective through federal legislation.

Senator Nelson of Wisconsin

plans to introduce a tire standards measure similar to the one that was before Congress last year. This time he has the support of Mrs. Esther Peterson, special presidential assistant for consumer affairs, who notes that her office "receives a great many complaints about faulty tires and misleading advertising." Tire retailers and government purchasing agencies also have expressed interest in a better tire standards system.

Nelson put it this way in testimony before the Federal Trade Commission: "A consensus has emerged over the past year that some constructive action must be taken to protect the life and the pocketbook of the consumer." There is little doubt that such a consensus exists, and that it would be even stronger if figures on auto accident cause were more widely known.

Weighs Risks Of Marrying Into Unstable Family

By Ann Landers

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am about to marry into a family of pill-takers and heavy drinkers. Charley's mother is a neurotic who goes for tranquilizing pills as if they were lemon drops. The minute she is faced with an unpleasant situation she stops eating and dopes herself up. She's not responsible for what she says when she's on pills so everyone must overlook her mean tongue.

Her daughter does the same thing and she is only 20. Her two older sons are confirmed alcoholics who take pills right along with the booze.

Charley is the only one in the family who is normal. He doesn't drink at all and I have to fight to get an aspirin down him when he has a headache.

I've discussed this problem with my doctor and he says such behavior is more environmental than hereditary—"usually"—which leaves me with questions in my mind.

Do you feel Charley and I could raise normal children despite his nutty background? I need your help. —OUT-DOPED

Dear Out: A person who marries into an unstable family always runs a risk since we "do" inherit our nervous systems.

You don't say how old Charley is but he seems to have done immeasurably better than the other members of his family. If you marry him I hope you will move to another city, as added insurance. Sometimes nutty relatives can make a well person sick.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 55. My husband is 57. We've been married 10 years. This is a second marriage for both of us. I was a widow. Clancy divorced his wife because he found out she was a tramp.

Our marriage was wonderful until last year when Clancy's former wife rediscovered him.

When Clancy was married to her he never had a homecooked meal. The house was a mess, there were no clean sheets and no groceries so he couldn't even fix his own meals. He carried his laundry and dry cleaning to the corner. She was such a cold proposition he nicknamed her "Ice Cube."

For the past three weekends Clancy has taken her up north and I have sat home. She leaves gloves, scarves and earrings around so I will be sure to know she has been in the car. I'm sick of this and have told him so. He says if I don't like it I can leave. This is "my" house, Ann. What shall I do? —V. C.

Dear V. C.: The ice cube has melted and spring is here. When ex-mates rediscover each other the flame can get pretty high.

Tell Clancy he can move out and now, but insist that he send those support checks in the mail. Chances are he'll suddenly remember why he divorced the doll.

Dear Ann Landers: We are five high school girls with a very serious problem. Last year there were five big dances but not one of us got asked to any of them, so we went stag. A whole string of fellows showed up, also staggling it.

They just stood around, holding up the walls, looking everybody over but not one of them asked a girl to dance. We had to dance with each other, which I hate.

Why do fellows come to a dance if they don't "want" to dance? How can we break the sound barrier and get these guys to shake a leg? Help! —Help!

SENIORS NOW

Dear Seniors: One reason boys don't ask girls to dance is because they don't know "how" to dance.

What your school needs is dancing instructions for both boys and girls. Ask your principal or dean if you can organize dance classes after school or on Friday evenings. Make posters and promote it big. Generate some excitement. When the fellows can shake their legs with some confidence they'll do less standing around.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

By the next day, the leadership candidacy of Rep. Gerald Ford of Michigan was in the making. Ford announced for the post Dec. 19.

The activists' Dec. 16 night meeting in Goodell's office was not their first. Augmented by one or two others, including Rep. Thomas Curtis of Missouri, they had met in Griffin's office about two weeks after the election.

That earlier session was sparked by a series of round-robin telephone calls, not the least being one from Rumsfeld in a Florida vacation spot to Curtis in Washington.

The bonds among some of these men are sturdy. Goodell and Griffin are good friends.

Charles Halleck really lost his job as House Republican leader on Dec. 16, when he proved unresponsive to new ideas being tossed out by some of his fractious colleagues in a full GOP conference.

That party had not been summoned to consider a change in leadership, but instead to talk over new techniques of leadership and other means of lifting the Republican party ultimately to majority status in both Congress and the country.

Says one "activist" who was pushing for change:

"We were watching Halleck that day to see if he would generate any new approaches. He did not."

The seven-hour conference left many Republicans convinced that a new outlook would come only with a new face.

That very night, Dec. 16, several of the self-styled activists met in the office of Rep. Charles Goodell of New York to plan for Halleck's ouster.

Among those present, besides Goodell, were Reps. Robert Griffin of Michigan, Donald Rumsfeld of Illinois, Albert Quie of Minnesota.

Rumsfeld used to work for Griffin. They found it easy to talk.

At that time, in mid-November, the talk centered not on ousting Halleck but on what Curtis calls "restructuring the party." Curtis, in fact, let it be known he would not then join any effort aimed at Halleck's removal.

The whole effort of the group, then, was to get a party conference under Ford's chairmanship scheduled, and see to it that major matters of party rebuilding dominated the agenda.

As the activists see it, the need in the House is for good professional staffing for Republicans on key committees, better means of drawing together the reduced GOP House membership (down 38 to 140 after the election), more participation in floor debate and party councils by all the Republican members.

The Goodell-Griffin-Rumsfeld-Quie group rated the big Dec. 16 party parley a failure—and blamed it heavily on Halleck.

In the limited time after Ford's Dec. 19 announcement, these four, a backup squad of about equal size, and occasionally some two dozen more Republican lawmakers worked like beavers to round up the votes for victory. They insisted no nose count was taken before Ford jumped in.

The fight was a thing of long hours and shifting numbers. As late as the morning of the final vote of Capitol Hill, two of Ford's supposedly solid 67 votes were known to be lost. One or two others later slipped away.

But a good harvest from the "leaners" and a slight pickup from Halleck's "solid" total put Ford over.

Ford gives House Republicans the new face. What they now expect from him is strong initiatives toward a new party posture that can help win national support for the GOP in 1966 and beyond.

In Hollywood

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What's really behind Elizabeth Taylor's recent renunciation of her American citizenship?

At the moment, she is getting the blast from some of the Hollywood press. One columnist even compared her with Charlie Chaplin.

Both Chaplin and Elizabeth were born in London. Chaplin never became an American citizen because, his close friends say, he hoped — and still hopes — that the queen will knight him some day. They contend it's the dream of a comic whose boyhood in the London slums made Oliver Twist look like the Bobsey twins.

Elizabeth and Chaplin both made their fortunes here.

Other columnists say that Elizabeth's decision is due to a desire to escape paying American taxes. She wants to become a British citizen where taxes are even higher.

Both she and Richard Burton are Swiss residents, which makes them about as economical in the income tax bracket as it is ever possible to be — U.S. or British.

Richard is now doing "The Spy Who Came in From the Cold" in Ireland while Liz visits setside. In the spring both will come here to do "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?"

If she gets her British citizenship solely by then, then she will have to pay both U.S. and British taxes.

So what's the real reason? You don't have to explain it to most of the girls who married G.I.'s overseas. They do it all the time.

It's love.

Elizabeth is so much in love with Burton that she even is fighting with her agents and producers to have her billing changed to Elizabeth Burton.

But she loves Burton most of all. It's all very simple. Women will understand.

She loved Mike Todd so much that she renounced her Christian Scientist faith and started taking instructions in Judaism.

By the time she was converted Mike was killed in a plane crash and she was planning to marry Eddie Fisher, also Jewish. They were wed in Jewish rites.

Liz' talk nowadays is flavored with such British expressions as "luv" and "bloody."

She loves the United States as much as anyone. She loves Britain, too, especially Wales.

Number Of Illinois Farms Continues Ebb; Only 143,900 In '63

As of April 1, 1964, Illinois had 143,900 farms, 4,500 less than the previous year, according to the 27th annual Farm Census report issued by the Illinois Cooperative Crop Reporting Service.

Township assessors assemble farm census records along with their assessment. A farm operator reports all land he is operating to the assessor of the township or precinct in which he resides. After the assessor's work is complete, it is summarized and published by the reporting service.

Total farmland acreage has declined about three per cent during the last decade, according to Robert H. Moats, superintendent and agricultural statistician in charge of the service. He pointed out that farming units averaged 208 acres in 1964, up five acres from the previous year.

Reclaiming of strip mines and drained land along rivers has partly offset losses of farmland to urban development, highways, lakes and other non-farm uses, according to Moats.

At the end of World War II there were some 200,000 farms averaging 160 acres in Illinois. There are 471,342 persons reported living on 134,127 farms, an average of 3.5 persons per farm.

More Land In Crops
The new farm census shows that crops were grown on 67 per cent of all farmland in the state during 1963, up two per cent from a year earlier.

Corn was harvested on 30 per cent of all farmland, or 45 per cent of all cropland harvested in Illinois. Soybeans, the second most important Illinois crop in terms of acreage, were grown on 19 per cent of the land in farms.

Small grains were harvested on 11 per cent of the land in farms and hay and other crops on seven per cent. Pasture occupied 16 per cent of the farmland while the remaining 17 per cent consisted of farmsteads, idle cropland, including government farm program diversion, wasteland and timber.

More Acres In Corn
Corn acreage showed a seven per cent gain in 1963 over a year earlier while soybean acreage was off by a fraction of one per cent. Corn was grown on 9.1 million acres, the second largest corn acreage in the country, being surpassed only by Iowa's total.

Illinois continued to lead all other states in soybean production, harvesting 23 per cent of the nation's total output.

As reported by assessors, wheat acreage in 1963 increased 10 per cent over 1962. Oats declined seven per cent; rye, 12 per cent and barley, 24 per cent in 1963.

Crops Lead Livestock
Cash receipts from crops amounted to nearly $1.2 billion in 1963, or more than half of the state's farm cash receipts for the first time on record. Prior to World War II, crop sales contributed one-third of the total cash receipts and livestock sales contributed two-thirds of the total.

Illinois farmers realized total cash receipts during 1963 of $2.3 billion, exclusive of government payments. Sales of livestock and livestock products amounted to $1.1 billion. The state ranked third in the U.S. in terms of cash receipts from both livestock and livestock products and in crops sold.

Full Report Available
The 1964 annual Farm Census report, in booklet form, is available upon request. It contains complete statistics, tables and charts that show farm population figures, average number and size of Illinois farmland units, percentages of land use by crops, crop trends, information for comparison with previous years and agricultural statistics listed by districts and counties.

Persons interested in obtaining a copy of the new Farm Census Bulletin SFC-27 should write the Illinois Cooperative Crop Reporting Service, P. O. Box 429, Springfield, Illinois 62705.

Biologist Cites Need Of Cover For Game

By ARTHUR THATCHER

JERSEYVILLE — David Harper, biologist from the Illinois Department of Conservation, Division of Game Management, was the principal speaker at the weekly meeting of the Jerseyville Rotary club Monday noon at the Pezce United Church of Christ.

Harper showed a number of slides of photographs taken in the Jersey county area to illustrate the great importance of cover in the production and protection of game birds and animals. With the elimination of hundreds of miles of hedge fences that once existed on the farms of the locality, there has become a serious shortage of cover for quail, rabbits and other game.

Restoring Game Cover
In the period from 1952 until this year, there has been an effort to create new cover for game on many farms of the district. Multifloral rose fences, the planting of food patches and the ceasing of burning over woodland areas have been encouraged on many farms.

During the period named, more than 500 projects have been set up in the ten counties of this district. The counties included are Jersey, Greene, Calhoun, Pike, Scott, Morgan, Sangamon, Christian, Montgomery and Macoupin.

Ninety per cent of the game taken by hunters is on farms of the locality, and for this reason there has been a concerted effort to increase the available cover on farms and furnish a habitat for wild life in its various forms.

Brush Piles For Bunnies
Harper showed a number of pictures of various types of brush piles on wooded areas of farmlands for the encouragement of game. The large piles are not recommended as it is too difficult to get "Brer Rabbit" out of the pile when the hunting season arrives.

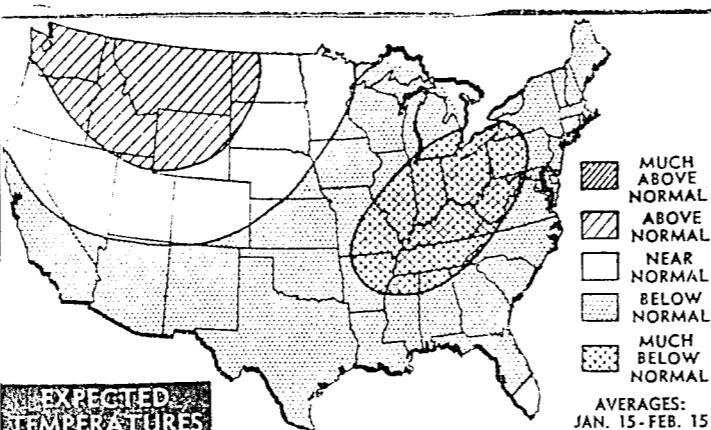

Bird banding in the locality is also a part of the program to determine the migratory habits of certain species. Doves in the area have been included in the banding project to determine how far they migrate and if they return to their home locality in future seasons.

BROWN EXPLORER SCOUTS TO FLY
MT. STERLING — Explorer Scout Post 11 made plans for an airplane ride at their regular meeting held Jan. 18 at the Scout cabin. The vice president was placed in charge of the program.

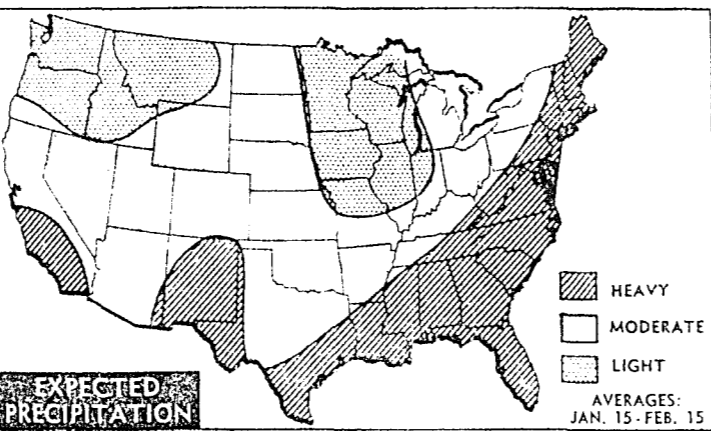

The fourteen scouts present continued discussion on the swimming party to be held at Western Illinois University.

Plans were also discussed for a fund raising chili supper and a letter inquiring about tickets to a St. Louis Hawks game was sent.

Daily food requirement of an elephant is about a quarter of a ton of green fodder, or about 150 pounds of hay.

Temperatures should be well below seasonal normals over the eastern half of the nation as well as the southwest.

Precipitation is expected to exceed normal from the Gulf Coast northeastward through the Atlantic Coast states.

LIVESTOCK SCHOOL SCHEDULED FOR BROWN FARMERS

MT. STERLING — The Brown County extension service is sponsoring a beef cow-calf school to be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., Feb. 2 and 9 at the Farm Bureau building.

University of Illinois specialists will conduct sessions dealing with animal science, ag engineering, economics and veterinary medicine. Farmers are asked to register at the extension office immediately. A $2.50 registration fee will cover cost of notebook and materials used in class.

A free lunch will be provided at noon by the Brown County feed and machinery dealers.

Swine School

A swine school is being sponsored by the Schuyler County Extension service and will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., Jan. 29, Feb. 5 and 12 at Scripps park in Rushville. A free lunch will be furnished each day.

Brown County farmers who were not able to attend the classes held in Brown County last year are invited to attend. The fee is $2.50 and reservations should be made before Jan. 25 by contacting Robert Hayward, Jr., Brown County farm adviser.

WHITE HALL LODGE TO INSTALL SLATE ON FEB. 2

WHITE HALL—Adams Rebekah Lodge No. 375 met Jan. 19 for a potluck supper at the I.O.O.F. Home. Mrs. Dwight Coonrod and Miss Dorothy M. Young were in charge. Grace was offered by Mrs. Ada Brannan.

It was announced Mrs. Alma Fries, vice president of the Rebekah Assembly of Illinois will be here on Feb. 2 to install officers. A ham-potluck supper will precede the installation.

Members of the local lodge will be guests in Roodhouse on Feb. 1 of Adele Rebekah when the assistant vice president will be present to install their officers.

Mrs. M. B. Roodhouse was hostess at her home recently to the Merry-Mix-Up Club. Four charter members were present. The club was organized in 1931 with ten members. A potluck dinner was enjoyed and the afternoon spent socially.

ILLINOIS OUTLOOK LETTER

DESPITE DROUTH, AVERAGES HIGH THROUGHOUT STATE

1964 was a fair, or average, year for most Illinois farmers — but it was a poor one for a considerable number.

It was a poor year for many farmers in the southern half of the state. Severe drouth cut crop yields in many counties south of Springfield. It was also a poor year for many cattle feeders. Most of the cattle feeding in Illinois is in the northern and western counties.

In areas not seriously damaged by drouth, crop yields were average or better — generally second only to those of 1963.

Corn. The average corn yield in Illinois was 78 bushels per acre, according to the Illinois Cooperative Crop Reporting Service. (This agency is supported jointly by the Illinois Department of Agriculture and the USDA. Its crop estimates are based largely upon reports provided by hundreds of farmers.)

The 78-bushel yield was the third highest on record for Illinois. The two better years were 1963 and 1962. The 1964 Illinois average was the highest in the Midwest. And it was also the highest in the nation — except for a few western states where yields are boosted by irrigation.

Total production of corn in Illinois is estimated at 710 million bushels. Only in 1963 was the output greater. Our state ranks second in corn production. The 1964 Illinois corn crop is valued at over $800 million, only 3 percent less than the 1963 crop.

Soybeans. The Illinois soybean crop was below average because many heavy producing counties were in the drouth area. The average yield for the state was 25 bushels per acre. This compares with the record of 29.5 bushels in 1963 and the five-year 1958-62 average of 27.4 bushels. Illinois had the third highest yield per acre in the nation. Iowa had 28 bushels, as did Texas, where a small acreage is grown under irrigation.

Illinois continued in first place in total production of soybeans, with 145 million bushels. This output was 13 percent less than in 1963, but slightly more than the five-year average. The acreage harvested was 4 percent greater in 1964 than in 1963.

The total value of the 1964 Illinois soybean crop may be near $400 million, only 4 percent less than that of 1963. Higher prices and greater acreage this year largely offset lower yields per acre.

Wheat and Oats. Illinois wheat averaged 37 bushels per acre in 1964. This was 3 bushels less than the record of 1963, but 6 bushels more than the five-year 1958-62 average. Total production was 67 million bushels, 4 percent less than in 1963 but 32 percent more than the five-year average.

Oat yields averaged 50 bushels per acre in 1964, 7 bushels less than in 1963 and 1 bushel less than the five-year average. Production totaled 56 million bushels, the smallest on record except for 1934, when extreme drouth cut the state average to only 13 bushels per acre.

L. H. Simler, Extension Economist, Agricultural Marketing

One of the first attempts at forest conservation in our country occurred in the late 1600's, according to the Book of Knowledge. In 1681, William Penn decreed in his Pennsylvania colony that one acre of forest should be left standing for every five acres that were to be cleared.

Morgan Soil, Water District To Meet

The Morgan County Soil and Water Conservation district will hold its annual meeting Monday, Feb. 1, with a dinner in the parlors of Centenary Methodist church at 6:30 p.m.

The chairman of the district, Earl Myers, route 3, Jacksonville, will preside.

The speaker will be Peter Boving, U. I. Extension specialist in soil and water management, and his topic will be "Farm Water Supplies."

A native of Canada, Boving joined the University of Illinois staff in 1961. He received his degree in agricultural engineering at the University of British Columbia in 1953 and his master's at the University of California in 1954. Before coming to Illinois he spent four years in agricultural drainage research in the Swift Current basin, Saskatchewan, Canada, and at Davis, Calif., and was two years an irrigation systems adviser in the Southwest.

Joe Graham, USDA technician in Morgan-Scott, will give his annual report.

Two directors will be elected. The terms of Irl Henderson and R. E. Stocker, both of Murrayville, expire this year.

Other board members are Don Richardson, route 2; John McFadden, route 1, and Dale Leeper, Ashland.

J. D. Bunting, Jacksonville, is chairman of the nominating committee.

PETER BOVING

Two 4-H members who attended conservation workshops in Macomb and Urbana last summer will discuss their experiences. They are Duane Mallicoat of the Arcadia Acres and Dan Maddox of the Lynnville Hustlers.

Herbicides Replace The Corn Cultivator?

A recently completed three-year corn study comparing broadcast application of atrazine with conventional cultivation indicates that at least one cultivation is still in order, says University of Illinois agronomist E. L. Knake.

Present herbicides are not always effective, Knake explained. When they fail to adequately control weeds, cultivation is required. None of the present herbicides used for corn will control all weed species. Cultivation can help to control weeds that the herbicide doesn't control.

Knake said that, for most soils in most seasons, the different treatments caused no significant difference in yields.

Some selected data suggested a slight advantage for cultivation on a silt loam soil that was low in organic matter where seedbed preparation was excessive and where the soil tended to crust.

The corn hybrids stood well in all treatments. Throwing soil into the row around the base of corn plants did not increase the number of erect plants at harvest.

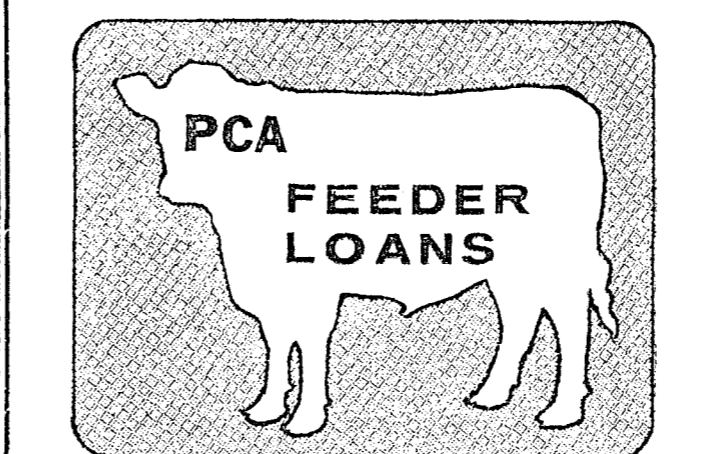

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Vestal were recent supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Nagle. Mrs. Opal Lawson of Jacksonville and Mrs. Julia Roesch of Port Huron, Mich. were Thursday evening supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Lawson and sons. They had just returned from a visit with Mrs. Lawson's son Russell and family in Orlando, Fla. While there, they visited Cape Kennedy and other points of interest.

Dan Smock, Bill and Butch Lawson, John Hartz, Brenda, Bill and Janet Pennell, Mrs. Ruth Pennell and son Jay, Stanley Dorris and Forest DeShleria attended the MYF skating party in Jacksonville Sunday.

CONSERVATIONISTS TO MEET IN CASS

VIRGINIA — The Annual Cass County Soil and Water Conservation meeting will start with a ham dinner served by the American Legion Auxiliary at the American Legion Hall in Virginia, Monday, Feb. 1, at 6:30 p.m. There will be an election of two directors for a term of two years, a review of the 1964 accomplishments and entertainment. Dinner tickets are available from the district directors, Soil Conservation district office and the Extension office.

INCREASE YOUR PROFITS

Make your credit arrangements in advance—it doesn't cost you a penny. Money is available while you shop around for the best buy, yet you don't pay interest until you make the purchase. Use a convenient Production Credit draft to pay for your cattle. Drafts are as handy as a check book. It makes no difference whether you buy all your feeders at one place, or shop around and buy a few at a time. Interest cost does not start until each draft gets back to the association.

With a production credit loan you will have plenty of time to get your cattle ready for Market and you can be sure you will not be forced to sell.

For further information consult your local Production Credit fieldman. You will find him listed in the telephone book.

Feb. 1 Deadline To Pay Security Tax On Workers

Farmers in this area are reminded that annual reports of the earnings of their farm workers are due in the office of the District Director of Internal Revenue by February 1.

Farm employers who fail to file a yearly report on the earnings of their farm employees and to pay the social security taxes due are subject to penalties and interest charges.

Harold J. Vascocelles, Springfield social security district manager, and Jay C. Philpott, district director of Internal Revenue, Springfield, noted that the earnings of most farm workers are covered under social security. A farm employee, to be covered, must be paid at least $150 in cash wages by his employer, or work for the employer on 20 or more days during the year for cash wages figured on a time basis (rather than on a piece-rate basis).

For 1964 the social security tax rate is 3 1/2 percent each for employer and employee on cash wages up to $4,800. The tax amount must be entered on Form 943 (Employer's Annual Tax Return for Agricultural Employees) together with the total amount of cash wages paid to each farm worker.

ANIMAL HEALTH CLINIC JAN. 28

All farmers are invited to attend an animal health clinic to be held Thursday, Jan. 28, at Farm Bureau hall. It is sponsored by Morgan Producers Supplies, a Farm Bureau cooperative.

Dr. M. R. Brown of the Anchor Serum Co., St. Joseph, Mo., will be the speaker.

FHA Announces New Small Loan Program

A new program of small loans, coupled with farm management assistance is now open to farm families with limited incomes in Morgan County, Norman T. Torrains, county supervisor for the Farmers Home Administration, said last week.

Loans up to $2,500 are available to farm families with limited incomes who cannot qualify for financial assistance under regular loan programs of Farmers Home Administration or private lenders.

"Opportunity loans are aimed at helping farm and rural families earn more income through their own enterprises," Torrains said.

Loans to farmers operating small, limited income farms may be used to purchase livestock, machinery and equipment, construct or repair farm buildings, pay annual operating expenses for seed, feed and fertilizer, refinance real estate debts and purchase land.

The loans also may be used to buy shares in small cooperatives that serve rural people.

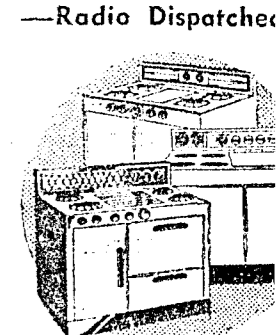

Loans are repayable over periods of up to 15 years. They carry an interest rate of 4 1/2 percent.

To qualify for loans to finance agricultural enterprises an applicant must be a farmer and have earnings that are too low to cover basic family living needs.

Farmers Home Administration county supervisors will assist borrowers in planning farm operations and management of loan funds.

In addition to loans for farming, Farmers Home Administration may now make loans for nonagricultural enterprises that will produce added income.

WEATHER VARIABLES AND CORN YIELDS

According to Dean Louis M. Thompson of Iowa State University, the most important weather variables in predicting corn yields are pre-season moisture and rainfall in June, July and August. Highest yields come when you have normal pre-planting moisture, followed by normal June rain, higher than normal July rainfall and near normal rainfall in August. For temperatures, about average June temperatures, followed by cooler than normal July and August mercury readings have given the best yields. When this moisture and temperature pattern varies, yields are lower.

FROM THE CORN CRIB:

Some city folk on a trip to northwestern Illinois stopped to buy eggs from a farmer. After paying for the eggs, the driver said, by way of making conversation: "You sure have rough country out here, don't you? It's all up one hill and down another."

The farmer gazed reflectively at a nearby hill, then replied: "Well, we natives here just don't go that fast—we go up one hill and then down the other side of the same hill first!"

Cut Your Own Taxes: 7

Volunteer Expense
You May Deduct

By RAY DE CRANE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
It probably was an Internal Revenue auditor who first said:
"There would be no mortgages outstanding on churches today if churches actually received all the money people claimed they contributed on their tax returns."

Perhaps that is why so many church officials are being queried by tax auditors these days to confirm contributions being reported on tax returns.
As in all other statements and deductions claimed on tax forms the burden of proof is on the taxpayer and it is a wise man who has a statement from his church or canceled checks to support his contributions.

Furthermore, there is no
"rule of thumb" or "average amount" to be listed as a contribution. List what you actually gave. That amount is your deduction.

Of course, for the overly generous there are maximum limitations. Contributions are generally limited to 20 per cent of total income. An additional 10 per cent may be taken if the money went to religious, charitable, scientific, literary or educational organizations. This does not include tuition to a school or college but an outright gift.

In addition to your contributions to church you may deduct all contributions to nonprofit schools and hospitals, Salvation Army, Red Cross, Community Chest, Camp Fire Girls, Boy Scouts, the various health funds and societies for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals.

There are other items that are also properly considered as deductible charitable contributions.

Say you go to a theater party where all the proceeds go to a recognized charity. If the cost of the ticket is $50 and the usual charge for the entertainment or play is $5, then the additional $45 is treated as a contribution.

Or you go to a church affair and bid $10 for a box lunch. If the fair market value of the

Remember the burden of proof is on even the cheerful giver.

lunch is $1.50, you have an $8.50 charitable contribution.

Should you give articles of clothing or household goods to a church or charitable agency then the fair market value of the items so given is deductible.

Many housewives overlook another charitable deduction now available to them.

If you are a volunteer worker at a hospital, a den mother to a Brownie or Cub Scout pack or the Boy Scouts or Girl Scouts you may have some deductible expenses which never occurred to you.

As a volunteer worker, your cost of transportation to and from the hospital or welfare institution is deductible. If you used your own car the cost of gas and oil plus parking may be itemized. Or you may simply use a Treasury-approved allowance of five cents a mile on the car.

Cost of meals and lodging while performing your donated service are also deductible.
Should you be required to wear a distinctive uniform which is not readily adaptable to general use its original cost and laun-dery expenses may also be included.

Den mothers who take turns holding meetings for Scout groups may charge off the cost of snacks served at meetings as well as transportation expenses when taking such groups on field trips.

Delegates to a church convention who are not compensated for their services or reimbursed for their expenses may deduct the transportation charges plus the cost of meals and lodging while attending to convention business.

Under no circumstances may you charge off any value placed on your time or services while performing such volunteer work.

Should you donate painting, a work of art, a bond, securities or anything of value to a religious or charitable institution, the fair market value of the item—it may be more or less than your original cost—is fully deductible.

Here is another example of duplicate luck from the first round of the '65 World championship trials in which the U.S. team was determined. Most South players chose to pass, but one South opened with a heart.

Once started on this career, South found it impossible to stop as North proceeded to make one forcing bid after another. Eventually, South found himself at six hearts. He did not like his contract, but there was nothing to do but hope for the best.

South ruffed the diamond opening and led a heart toward dummy. West played low and South rose with dummy's king.
This picked up East's jack and a second trump lead bumped the ace and queen together, whereupon South claimed the rest of the tricks and his contract.

One other North-South pair managed to reach the same horrible slam. Each slam bidder was rewarded with 12 International Match Points while their unfortunate opponents were penalized the same amount.

The most interesting play of this hand occurred when one East player found himself playing a five diamond doubled contract. He got there after his partner doubled a four diamond call by South and North had redoubled.

South cashed three spade tricks and shifted to a heart won by North's king. A second heart put East in dummy. He led a low trump and finessed his ten. Then he played a club, whereupon the defense cashed two club tricks and led a third club for dummy to ruff.

Another low trump was led from dummy and North made the correct play of the ace. At this point North's correct play was to lead a low trump. East would win in his own hand and North would make his jack of trumps, but even experts go wrong. North led his last heart, whereupon East made the rest of the tricks but was still down five tricks or 900 points.

THE JACKSONVILLE
DRAFT INSURANCE COMPANY

Capital Stock $200,000

Are you enrolled for the coming draft? If so, prepare for it early.

The above Company has been organized for the purpose of insuring persons from the coming draft, the Company binding itself in a policy to furnish and enter substitutes in every case where an individual insured by the Company, is drafted, thus enabling the person insured and drafted, to evade the anxiety and increased expense of procuring a substitute after the draft.

As the Company has unusual facilities for procuring substitutes and representative recruits, it is enabled to insure parties from the draft on the most reasonable terms.

Alien and veteran substitutes for the navy furnished and credited, under the law, to whatever place the party requiring a substitute is enrolled in.

Any information in reference to the draft cheerfully furnished. Office open at all hours of the day and night. All communications addressed to the Company will be promptly answered. P.O. Box 177, Jacksonville, Ill.

Officers — Dr. J. T. Cassell, Pres't.; O. D. Fitzsimmons, Vice Pres't.; Henry C. Coffman, Sec'y.; D. S. Davenport, Treasurer.

This company proved to be most profitable, for in late January through February, 1865, it appeared that everybody was going to be drafted under the call for 300,000 additional soldiers. By early March the great successes of Sherman's army in the Carolinas and Grant's in Virginia showed clearly that the war was fast approaching its close. The army decided they didn't want any more soldiers and the draft was suspended, much to the delight and profit of the company.

The premium varied greatly and was rated according to the "roll deficit" in each precinct. Men living in precincts that "owed" many soldiers had to pay a very high premium.

The rate in Jacksonville, which had had a "surplus" of soldiers before the last call, was $50. The same rate applied in Arcadia and Lynnville precincts. The premium was $100 in the rest of Morgan county was $100 with the exception of Sulphur Springs, $150. The premium in Greene county ranged from $75 in Greenfield up to $150 to $200 in the other precincts and Jersey county residents had to pay $200 to $300 for a policy.

The advertisement correctly stated that the office was open day and night, for it was the back room of the second floor of a frame building occupied by Mount & Rucker's "family grocery." This is now 58 East Side Square, the location of Russel Lahey's tavern. The Provost Marshal's office was three doors south.

The second floor of the "family grocery" was a combination billiard and card room and bar. Although the town was officially dry this place never closed its doors from early in 1862 until early in 1867. In 1866 the town was incorporated as a city and the mayor and aldermen elected were all dry and determined to do something about the situation. They were particularly against the saloons being open on Sunday and threatened to fine any such offender $100 and costs. The second floor saloon decided to close on Sundays, but couldn't find the key to the place and had to go out and buy a hasp and padlock.

News, Views
Century Ago

From the Jacksonville Journal: DOCTORS — We notice that for the past two months our town had the honor of being visited by about fifteen doctors of every character, and within that time no less than six have located here. We have now upwards of twenty stationary doctors here, and some dozen semi-monthly visiting ones. From this statement one would infer that Jacksonville was a very sickly city, but we think it is quite the reverse. There are also about twenty lawyers here, but still a more peaceable and law-abiding community will hardly be found.

DIPHTHERIA — There has been several fatal cases of diphtheria in this place lately. Mr. W. Wahle has lost two daughters within the past week to this dreaded malady. The first died last Saturday morning at nine o'clock, was three years old, and the other, about five years old, passed from this earth to join her little sister in Heaven, on Monday morning last.

The bill for an act appropriating seventy-five thousand dollars toward the completion of the East Wing of the Insane Hospital of this city, has been passed by the unanimous vote of the House.

From the Jacksonville Sentinel: The proportion of this state in the coming draft is now reported to be 35,500. The quota of Morgan is said to be 500.

We learn that a bill has been introduced into the Legislature to authorize the Morgan County Court to levy a tax upon the property of the county to pay bounty to substitutes in the coming draft.

Wm. L. Ransdell sold to John W. M. Rees, 40 acres 10 miles south of town, for $600.

Emanuel Hamilton sold to Hiram Friday, 80 acres of land north of town for $2,400.

E. S. Lax has bought the Prosser property, 20 acres of land within the corporate limits of Jacksonville, southwest part of town for $9,000.

M. Ridgely and James Neely sold to the Neelyville Coal Co., 184 acres, coal mines at Neelyville for $55,000.

H. H. Buchanan sold to Wm. A. Buchanan a lot at Orleans for $750.

From the Carrollton Gazette: Last week our merchants dealing in coal oil reduced the price from $1.25 per gallon to $1.10.

We are informed, although unofficially, that a Mr. Hamilton, a lawyer of Carlinville, has been appointed provost marshal for this district, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Wm. Fry.

There were many applicants for this job, but it was won by Capt. G. W. Hamilton of Carlinville. He then tried to move the office from Jacksonville to Carlinville, which was much nearer

DOMESTIC

The House has passed a bill reducing the duty on imported printing paper to 3 per cent ad valorem. It is to be hoped that this bill will soon pass the Senate.

Desertions from Lee's army continue to increase in numbers and frequency, and from fifty to seventy-five deserters per day are brought here in the City Point boat. They comprise not only privates, but officers disgusted with the service of the played-out Confederacy.

Captain Rapael Semmes, the notorious privateer, was in Richmond January 19.

Thirty-five dollars of the Confederate currency are worth only dollar in gold.

General George McClellan and wife sailed January 25 for Europe on the Cunard Steamer China. They intend an absence of six months, spending most of that time at Rome.

Intelligence deemed reliable has reached Washington that a new rebel privateer has left Nassau, heavily armed, to prey upon our commerce. The vessel is known as the Colonel Lamb, and report says she is both swift and of staunch build. Her crew is mostly foreign, and numbers nearly 200.

WARMING RAILWAY CARRIAGES — Trials were made recently in Prussia of a new method of warming railway carriages by steam. The boiler for the purpose is placed in the luggage-van and the steam passes through tubes into wooden cylinders in the coupe of each carriage. Safety-valves are provided to carry off the excess of pressure, which is limited to 1/4 of an atmosphere (about 3 1/4 lbs.) and a lever is placed in the carriage, so that the temperature can be regulated according to the will of the occupants. The experiments, it is said, succeeded perfectly.

the center of the new district, but was unable to get it done since Richard Yates, the new U.S. Senator, maintained it should be kept in Jacksonville. The County Court of Greene county have this week passed an order for the issuing of one hundred $500 bonds and five hundred $100 bonds for the purpose of aiding in raising volunteer recruits in the new draft. The bonds are to bear dates, February 1st, 1865, and the holder is to receive interest at the rate of ten per cent per annum. A large number of them are already contracted for, and will be issued as soon as they can be printed. Many of our citizens are going to invest in them as they consider the interest at a fair rate, and security prime.

This prediction proved premature. Sale of the bonds proved very slow and soon the proposition was given up altogether.

Many seeds of plants and flowers are so light, yet durable, that they can float in oceans and other bodies of water almost indefinitely. The seed of one particular tropical plant has been known to float for 143 days in rough salt water without injury. Seeds of asparagus can grow after being soaked in water for a year. And many water plants, such as arrowhead and mermaid weed, have seeds that remain healthy and able to sprout after lying several years at the bottom of a pond.

Baker Probe Is Hot-Potato Issue, Will There Be Any More Hearings?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bobby Baker probe and its stories about sex, payoffs, secret deals and big-shot politicians are unfinished business for the new Congress.

How much more of it will get a public airing by the Senate Rules Committee is a hot-potato issue.

The investigation of get-rich deals by Baker, former $19,600-a-year secretary to the Senate Democratic majority, already has mentioned the White House and President Johnson himself, Congress members and others prominent on the Washington scene. It was an issue in the 1964 presidential and congressional election campaigns.

The Rules Committee's Democratic majority once drew the curtain on it last July, marking it a closed issue despite Republican cries of "whitewash" and "coverup." But the curtain wouldn't stay drawn.

The committee's Democratic members, with a 6-3 majority over Republican members, waited until after the November elections, however, to reopen the hearings and receive some of the pious and most conflicting testimony.

Now the Republican minority is giving every sign it will fight any Democratic plans to ring down the curtain again without a far more searching study of sex angles and various other reportedly lurid allegations voiced by the chief accusing witness in the hearings, insurance man Don B. Reynolds.

Through it all Baker has refused to answer questions as a witness. He invoked the Fifth Amendment and its protection against self-incrimination, explaining he was under investigation by a federal grand jury and the Internal Revenue Service.

Thus far the probe has produced more allegation, suggestion and unresolved conflict of testimony than solid proof that Baker, from his influential Senate post, actually swayed decisions by government agencies.

Among the major factors are these:

The continuing efforts to learn how Baker, onetime Senate page boy and protégé of President Johnson, accumulated wealth which Baker himself counted at more than $2 million.

Conflicting charges and denials linking the names of Baker and Democratic politician Matthew H. McCloskey with an alleged $25,000 payoff to the 1960 Democratic presidential campaign fund from a government construction contract. McCloskey, former ambassador to Ireland and former chief fund raiser for the Democratic party, denied the allegations.

Reynolds' testimony that there had been a payoff and that he was its "bag man," McCloskey's denial, and Baker's refusal to testify left it a case of one man's word against another's.

Were beautiful women, some of them call girls, employed by influence peddlers to help swing secret political and business deals? If so, who was influenced and who were the women's employers? The public hearings for the most part have avoided these questions.

As matters stood when the committee adjourned its hearings Dec. 9, the Democratic majority apparently planned to hear only one more witness, former White House aide Walter H. Jenkins.

Jenkins has been under medical and psychiatric care since he resigned his White House job last fall after disclosure that he twice had been arrested on morals charges. It was not clear whether his doctors would declare him sufficiently recovered to testify at any early date.

The Democratic majority's announced plan is to turn over to the Justice Department various unresolved matters. These include a still secret FBI report on the Washington adventures of Ellen Rometsch, a brunette West German beauty and reported friend of Baker and many others prominent in Washington.

The committee last month obtained copies of FBI files on Mrs. Rometsch but quickly returned them to the Justice Department without exploring them publicly. Its Democratic majority voted down Republican demands for at least a delayed decision on what to do about the files.

Mrs. Rometsch was whisked back to Germany in 1963 not long before Baker resigned under fire from his Senate job and the committee started investigating him.

Testimony has described both Baker and a Fifth Amendment pleading business associate as "partying" in New Orleans with Mrs. Rometsch and Baker's pretty secretary, Miss Nancy Carole Tyler. The associate is Paul Aguirre, a mortgage banker in Puerto Rico.

Standing grimly silent in the background and awaiting further developments is Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., whose lone-wolf investigations were a major factor in setting off the Baker probe.

He added that he still had interesting material in his files on Baker.

The committee itself made public at its December hearings a letter from Williams urging it to obtain and check the FBI files on Mrs. Rometsch. His letter spoke of "several rather persistent rumors that these files will show a connection between Mrs. Rometsch, Mr. Baker and perhaps others associated with the United States Senate."

The committee's chairman, Sen. B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., announced its majority vote to refrain from hearings on sex aspects. He said the majority felt it had "no legal right to probe into the private conduct of individuals."

Without elaboration, he said the FBI Rometsch files contained nothing related to the "official conduct" of any senator or other Capitol Hill personages.

The committee gave no indication of calling back to its witness stand insurance man Reynolds for public quizzing about reportedly lurid but largely hearsay testimony he had given behind closed doors.

Reynolds is the man who flung President Johnson's name and those of other politicians into the investigation during its first stormy round of hearings.

He produced documents showing he had bought Johnson a $585 stereophonic record player in 1959 after having shelled out $1,208 in 1957 for advertising time — time he couldn't use — on an Austin, Tex., television station owned by the Johnson family. Republicans called these things kickbacks from Reynolds' commissions on the sale of two $100,000 insurance policies on Johnson's life.

Johnson was a senator from Texas at that time. He has stated he was unaware the stereo gift had come from Reynolds. He said he thought it had come from Baker, with whom he said he had often exchanged gifts.

All this came out in the first round of hearings, which traced a web of complex outside business deals in which Baker had claimed to have run up a $2-million fortune.

In what it then believed would be its final report, the committee's Democratic majority in July accused Baker of "many gross improprieties" in his outside business dealings but said it had found no evidence he had violated laws.

The majority report said it had found "no more than a scintilla of evidence that Baker or any other officer or employee of the Senate had used 'call girls' or other immoral women for promoting their outside business and financial activities and that no evidence other than rumors was produced."

Then in a Sept. 1 Senate speech, Williams unveiled fresh evidence which forced a reopening of the probe—but not until after the elections.

Romania Pushing Aside Reds, Reaching To West

By PRESTON GROVER
BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Romania is firmly pushing aside the strong hand of Russian controls on her industry and society, and reaching for help and support in the West. Next to Yugoslavia, Romania has taken the most independent stance of any of the East European states. The attitude of her Communist party leaders reflects a general loosening of the Soviet grip through the Red belt in the wake of de-Stalinization, de-Khrushchevization, and the clash with Red China. The country doesn't intend to try to break out of the Soviet orbit, not now, even though delegation after delegation has headed westward in recent months building up political, cultural and especially business contacts.

The United States has lowered some of its own trade barriers with the immediate result that American companies have agreed to build two new factories in Romania, the first in years. Many things have been done to emphasize Romanian nationalism and reduce Russian influences. The younger generation seems all for it. "It is the new renaissance,"

CASS STUDENTS RECEIVE HONORS

BEARDSTOWN — Charles Sullivan, principal at the high school here, has announced that George McClure, son of Attorney and Mrs. Milton McClure, and a senior at the high school, has won appointment as an Edmond J. James Scholar and will attend the University of Illinois.

He has been a consistent honor student during his four year high school career. Two other Beardstown high school students, Dan McCausland and George Brecker took examinations in Jacksonville last week in which they vied for West Point appointments. Both did well enough in the exams and qualified as semi-finalists.

Speaks In Rushville
Bijoo Tamadon, the foreign exchange student who is attending Beardstown high school, was speaker at the meeting of the Business and Professional Woman's club in Rushville Monday.

Mr. Tamadon is staying with the Milton McClures during his year's visit here.

said one young intellectual at a dinner party. Older people are more cautious, although they, too, know of relatively bold steps toward what many here speak of as "de-Russification."

The Romanians have had to switch political affiliation so many times through the centuries that it is a wonder they preserve any nationality at all. They are a Latin country, especially in language, and almost equally in appearance and manner of speech and gesture. They had horrible experiences in both world wars. They were allied with Germany in 1914, but after two years of neutrality sided with the Allies. They were promptly overrun by the Germans, Austrians and Hungarians.

The country was virtually occupied by the Germans before World War II started. It soon was shared out like war booty. Without a shot, Russia, with Adolf Hitler's agreement, occupied Bessarabia as far south as the mouth of the Danube. Hungary took Transylvania. Romania, with little choice but much enthusiasm, joined Germany in the attack on Russia and took back Bessarabia. The country was chewed up by both sides when, late in the war, she switched and turned on Germany. She was occupied by the Russians, and lost Bessarabia again and it remains in Russian hands.

TUMBLE INJURES AREN'TVILLE CHILD

Hurt In Fall
Mrs. Grace Zulauf is a patient at Schmit Memorial Hospital in Beardstown following a fall near her home on Tuesday. Her injuries reportedly include a dislocated shoulder and chipped bone.

Areznville Notes
Miss Meredith Beard returned to her home on Sunday after being a patient at Schmit Memorial Hospital, Beardstown, for several days. Mrs. Alice Giger attended funeral services for Mrs. Mable Giger at Pittsfield on Tuesday.

The Battle of Bunker Hill was fought chiefly on Breed's Hill.

Catholic, Protestant Bodies To Meet In First Officially Sponsored Talks

NEW YORK (AP) — The first officially sponsored talks in modern history between representatives of the Roman Catholic Church and of major Protestant and Orthodox bodies will begin soon, a leader of the World Council of Churches said Friday.

The Rev. Dr. Franklin Clark Fry, just returned from a 10-day meeting of the council's policy-making Central Committee in Enugu, Nigeria, said the talks at the outset will be "exploratory in nature."

They will seek "to identify areas of mutual concern which give promise of further development of cooperation," he told a news conference at Lutheran Church House.

The World Council of Churches is made up of 214 Protestant, Eastern Orthodox, Anglican and Old Catholic denominations with about 350,000,000 members around the globe.

Dr. Fry, president of the Lutheran Church in America, is chairman of the 100-member central committee, the council's interim policymaking body.

He said the newly authorized talks with Roman Catholicism constitute a "momentous step" in a historical context but that it is "a step, not a leap" and a "natural progression" of recent events.

The World Council and various Protestant and Orthodox representatives have been in touch with the Roman Catholic Church as observers at the Vatican Council the last three years, and also in other ways. But the newly planned talks will be the first regular discussion meetings on an equal footing.

Dr. Fry said the talks are expected to begin within a few months and will deal initially with subjects that are "not too complicated" and those that are "likely to produce" continued advances in inter-church cooperation.

XXX
I didn't awaken the next morning until ten o'clock. Even then, what brought me out of bed was somebody knocking on the door. I walked over to it.

"Who is it?" I asked.

"Jimmy."

I unlocked the door and headed for the bed, calling back over my shoulder. "Don't you ever sleep?"

"Sure," he said. "I had plenty of sleep."

I picked up the phone and called room service, ordering breakfast. I lit a cigarette and stared glumly at Jimmy Shan until the waiter arrived. After I signed for the meal, he left. I poured myself a drink and motioned to Jimmy. "Help yourself."

He did with alacrity. "No little surprises for me this morning?" I asked. "No new millionaires robbed or anything like that?"

He shook his head. "News very dull this morning. Police still report they expect to make early arrest, but offer no new facts. No news in the paper about last night."

"Then what are you doing here?" I asked.

His smile grew broader. "I detected the same tone in your voice last night. I think it means that action starts today, so I came around for orders."

"You're too smart," I told him. I finished my drink and tackled the breakfast. "The only trouble is I don't have any orders at the moment. Stick around."

When I reached coffee and a second cigarette, I began to feel a little more human. I picked up the phone and called Inspector Hemming. "Good morning," I said. "This is Milo March. How goes everything with all the professional snoopers this morning?"

"Fine," he said evenly. "Does your call mean that you've finally got more than a guess?"

"No. Everything was quiet last night," I winked at Jimmy. "I was wondering if anything was happening on your end."

"We're working," he said. "I expect we'll have something before long. Was that all, Mr. March?"

"That's all," I said cheerfully. "Just wanted to make sure you were keeping on your toes. Cheerio."

"Hiya, pal," he said. "I thought maybe I'd hear from you yesterday, after you got through with the cop."

"I was busy."

He chuckled. "So I heard."

"What do you mean?"

"My boys get around," he said. "And after what happened here night before last, I decided maybe I was interested in that Whitey Blake."

He chuckled. "So I heard."

"They called once last night to tell me that Blake had some plans, about you. At Kai Shing's."

"Seems to me they were able to get a lot of information there."

"They ought to be able to. I own the joint."

"You own it?" I exclaimed.

"Then that waiter that put mickies in our drinks is one of your boys, too?"

"Well, not exactly. He works in the joint, that's all. You know how it is. I don't mind any of them doing a little work on the side, as long as it doesn't interfere with me. I had a little talk with that waiter this morning. You can go back any time you want to and all you'll get is straight drinks."

"No thanks."

"Anyway," he continued, "when the boys called, I told them to stick around and if you needed any help to give you a hand. But they told me you handled it real smart."

"Thanks," I said. "Everybody's trying to save my life. I'm overdone."

"It's all on the house," he said.

I hung up and thought for a minute. Finally, I turned to Jimmy.

"That first night when you came here," I said, "you knew all about my visit to the police and to Barney's office and what was said in both places. How did you find out?"

He smiled. "The receptionist in Burney's office. She likes to go out on the town once in awhile and I take her. Then there's a clerk who works in the police station who doesn't make enough money. He's discovered that listening at doors sometimes increases his income."

"You have other arrangements like that?"

"Sure. Every person I pay off is probably taking money from five or six others. It's one of the biggest businesses in Hong Kong."

JHS Downs Quincy 72-58; Virginia Cops Title

Bone And Whitaker Pace Impressive Win

By BUFORD GREEN

Jacksonville's Crimson used sterling play by center Steve Bone and guard Creston Whitaker and a dead-end accuracy at the charity stripe for a convincing 72-58 conquest of highly-rated Quincy High Friday night.

The two outstanding prep outfits, both rated high in the state all season, staved fairly even through most of the first half with the Crimson leading most of the way. Early in the third period and throughout the remainder of the contest Jacksonville pulled steadily away, mainly as a result of charity throws.

Bone threw in 22 points and grabbed a good share of the rebounds off both boards, while Whitaker added 21, playing only the final three quarters.

The Crimson connected on 32 of 42 gift shots for a 76% rate, and canned their shots from the floor at an even 50% clip, on 20 of 40 attempts.

The showdown game between the top two teams in West Central Illinois drew a standing room only crowd of over 3,000 fans. The game was one of feature billing in Friday night's state prep action.

The game saw a total of 50 fouls whistled, 30 against the visiting Blue Devils and 20 on the host Jacks.

Jacksonville actually led from midway in the first quarter but never pulled out of range until midway in the final eight minutes. Quincy managed to stay in range until the closing chapter mainly on the sparkling play of jumping-jack 5-8 guard Gary Thompson.

The most Jacksonville led in the first half was by seven to open the second period, but outstanding offensive performances by Bone and Whitaker allowed the Crimson to grab a 13-point edge.

Jacks Take Over

After Quincy got within nine at one point in the fourth, Whitaker, Ron Coleman and Bone again took over, mainly on gift shots to pull away finally to a safe distance.

The loss, Quincy's fourth in 13 games of playing a tough schedule, should drop the Blue Devils out of the top-ten rated outfits in the weekly Associated Press poll and insert the Crimson, who claimed their 12 victory in 14 starts.

Bone hit seven points in the opening eight minutes. The lead changed hands five times and the game was tied twice before late buckets from out by Bone and Coleman gave the Jacks a 11-9 first-frame difference.

With Kurt Gementan, Bob McMahon and Thompson hitting a hot streak and taking advantage of three JHS mistakes, Quincy shot back to within one, 16-11. From there Dennis Wegeholt canned four straight from 11-feet, Bone hit a pair of gift shots and a ten-footer for a 22-13 difference.

Bone hit two more free tosses and Coleman and Whitaker canned two-pointers on drives underneath for a 30-23 halftime reading.

Both clubs shot just under 50% for the opening half.

Whitaker Gets Hot

Whitaker took over in the third quarter, hitting on two quick three-point plays for a 37-26 edge. Dennis Sergeant, playing superbly all evening in his first starting role of the year with Whitaker suffering slightly from a bout with the flu, added a bucket and a free one for a 39-30 margin.

From there it was all Whitaker the rest of the quarter. The 6-0 forward, who has now scored 20 points or more in his last six games, scored the next six points and Coleman and Bone each added two, all from the free throw line, for a 49-38 lead to enter the final eight minutes.

The pressing Blue Devils continued to pile up the personals in the fourth quarter, losing two starters in the frame, while the Crimson kept cashing in from 15-feet.

Following a bucket by Bone, the Crimson ripped off four straight single-pointers, and Bone and Sergeant collected buckets from the outside.

After the flurry of gift shots the Crimson emerged with a sizeable 59-42 advantage with only 6:40 remaining. Coleman kept the place hot with a corner jumper and Bone hit both ends of a one and one to keep even with Thompson's hot outside shooting.

Wegeholt hit four-straight points and Whitaker canned a pair for a 20-point bulge with only 2:33 to play.

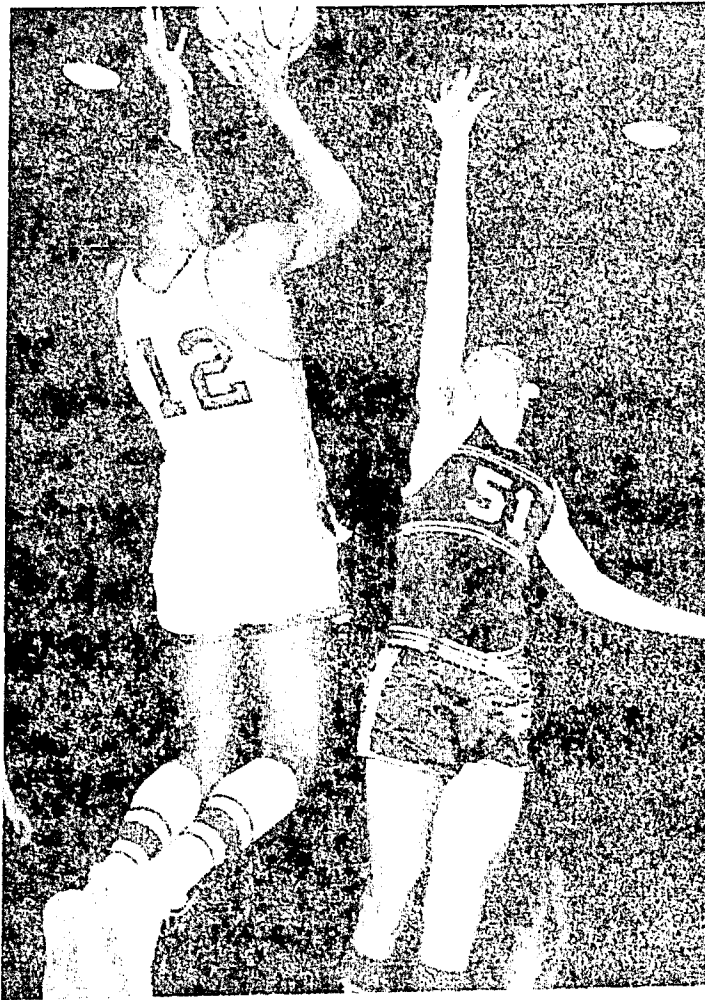

While Jacksonville was counting the win from the gift line, Quincy missed 11 of 25 chances from the 15-foot stripe. Against JHS's 50% shooting average, Quincy canned their shots at a 46% rate.

Quincy committed nine turnovers to Jacksonville's 14.

Following Bone and Whitaker, Wegeholt and Coleman also hit

One-Two Punch

Creston Whitaker jumps in two over the outstretched hands of Quincy's Jim Miles for a 62-49 JHS lead in the final three minutes. Whitaker played only the final three quarters but scored 21 points to aid an impressive 72-58 edge over the highly-rated Blue Devils.

Jacksonville's Steve Bone quickly followed with two points all alone after a rifle pass through the Quincy press. Bone's final bucket of his 22 points made it 64-48 with time running out.

Bone here fouls Quincy's Gary Buch on a play that added three points for the Blue Devils. Buch, a 6-6 center, fouled out in the fourth period.

Redbirds Put Down Late Surge 69-65

By AL KOCH

The Virginia Redbirds, paced by the 32-point game high total of forward Steve Larson, held off a late fourth quarter surge by the second-seeded Chanderville Comets to cap the PMSC championship trophy, for the second consecutive year.

In the third place consolation playoffs, fourth seed-Porta edged the Triopia Trojans 51-48.

Both games were nip and tuck battles to the very end, with all four teams backed up by a full house of enthusiastic supporters.

Larson netted a single loss from the free throw line with only :01 remaining, to give the Redbirds a 14-10 first quarter margin.

The second frame was again a real battle, as the two foes exchanged baskets throughout until with 1:22 left before the half time break, Larson tipped a shot by ace guard Rick Smith, to put the Virginians out in front 26-23.

Guard Bill Collins of the Chanderville five added two additional points to the Comet score by sinking both of his :45 tosses from the charity stripe.

Redbirds At Half

Virginia walked off the locker room with a slight 20-25 half-time billing.

The Redbirds entered the third quarter in winning form, but the win hungry Comets pursued the leaders with their accurate shooting, and brought the ball game to a 30-30 draw with 5:43 gone on the clock.

With :36 left in the third stanza, Chanderville brought the reading to a 42-41 showing, but Larson hit on a turnaround jumper with :04 left to give the Virginia five a 44-41 third quarter edge.

The final quarter saw Virginia build their lead to as much as ten points with 2:01 remaining on a driving layup by Smith, but the determined Comets were not to be counted out.

Chanderville's fine long shooting guard Collins, hit four tallies in the last minute, in addition to two points each by Dick Force from his forward spot and Carroll Logue from his forward station.

It was this last second stand by the Comet five that sent jitters up and down the astounded Redbird spines.

Center Wood Gebhardt of Virginia provided his ball club with the assurance of the championship however, as he dumped in two with :01 left to play.

Triopia battled a fired up Porta squad to a 17-17 first quarter deadlock, but fell in the second frame by four points as the Bluejays headed for the lockers with a 27-23 halftime lead.

Triopia Surprised

Guard Jim Morrison and forward John Werries provided the Triopia with the shooting power, while Porta was led in their victorious first half margin by guard Jim Nottingham.

Principia Nips IC In Overtime, 79-68

Ten points by Pete Sappenfield in an overtime period gave the Principia Indians a 79-68 extra-period margin over Illinois College in a Prairie College contest.

The Bluejays, dropping their eighth game in ten outings, fought from behind near the end of the tight game as late buckets by Jim Bruner and Paul Runkle.

Sappenfield, who hit a total of 33 for the night, took over in the overtime with ten points and Principia won going away.

Illinois College held several two-point leads in the tight first half, the last time at 18-16 as the Indians came on to forge ahead to stay.

The visitors held a 36-31 intermission advantage.

The Bluejays cut the gap to one in the second half twice, at 42-41 and at 54-53 but could never take the lead. Principia hung on to their advantage but never managed to pull away.

The visitors held a 61-57 edge with three minutes as Bluejays center Harold Kund left the game via fouls. Bruner hit a hooker to narrow the game to two, and Runkle tied it with 40 seconds to play. The Indians held for a final shot that failed. Principia hit a respectable 42% from the field for the contest, while the Bluejays again were cold from out with a 30.5% rate.

Dick Clough's 12 was high for the losers, followed by Kund's 10 and Bruner's nine as the ten players hit the scoring column.

IC is now 2-8 for the year and 1-2 in the PCC.

Cardinals Still Unhappy With Contract Offers

By BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Monster, Tony C and the MVP were among big name ballplayers signing major league contracts Friday while disgruntled members of the champion St. Louis Cards continued to balk.

The latest complaining Cardinal is Carl Warwick, whose record-tying three pinch hits helped St. Louis win the World Series.

Warwick said he has been asked to take a $1,000 cut in pay. "I think this is an insult," the young outfielder bristled. Warwick disclosed he had returned the contract along with a letter containing "appropriate language."

Julian Javier, the Cards' second baseman, said Thursday he had returned his contract which called for a $3,000 reduction in salary.

The Baltimore Orioles made Brooks Robinson, last season's American League Most Valuable Player, happy. They hiked his pay $15,000 to $50,000. "I feel fortunate to be able to do what I want, and get paid for it," the 27-year-old third baseman said appreciatively.

The Monster, huge relief pitcher Dick Radatz, and outfielder Tony Conigliaro were among four Boston players who came to terms. The others were veteran third baseman Frank Malzone and pitcher Earl Wilson. No figures were announced but it was believed that Radatz and Conigliaro received substantial increases.

The Cincinnati Reds and Milwaukee Braves each gathered in two signed contracts. Pitcher Roger Craig and outfielder Charlie James, both recently obtained from St. Louis, came to terms with the Reds. The Braves' signees were catcher-first baseman Gene Oliver and Joe Beck, a rookie catcher.

Tittle Retires After 17 Years In Pro Football

NEW YORK (AP) — Y.A. Tittle, the old Bald Eagle quarterback of the New York Giants, retired Friday after 17 years in pro football.

Tittle said he figured it was about time to hang them up at the age of 39 when rookie quarterback Gary Wood of Cornell not only "took my job away, but started to ask permission to date my daughter."

Actually, Tittle's daughter, Diane, is only 15, and he was only kidding about Wood's interest.

"But I did not want to be a mediocre player," Tittle said, "a player just hanging on, and I certainly was a mediocre player last year."

The Giants fell from first to last in the Eastern Division last season, and Tittle ranked at the bottom of the list of passers in the NFL statistics.

Tittle will be retained by the Giants as a public relations man, scout and general maker of friends.

Crimsons' Mat Team Wins 31-9

Jacksonville's wrestling squad took an easy 31-9 mat triumph over Springfield High Friday, mainly by sweeping the final seven contests.

DENIES RETIREMENT
HANOVER, N.H. (AP) — Alan Duggie Julian, basketball coach at Dartmouth since 1950, denied Friday that he plans to retire at the end of the current season.

A Dartmouth spokesman said Julian's contract runs until July 1, 1965, "and we're trying to get him to stay beyond that date."

The current season record is 2-10 and the Green has lost 25 consecutive Ivy League games.

Rushville Takes 51-41 League Win

HAVANA — Rushville blew a 19-point lead here Friday night, but still escaped with a 51-41 Spoon River conference over the Havana Ducks.

The Rockets led all the way, by as much as 19 in the third quarter before the Ducks rallied to pull within four in the closing eight minutes. From here the Rockets managed to catch hold and ring up the triumph.

Three players, Bob and Mick Lunt and Rick Phillips, each scored ten points in a balanced Rushville scoring attack.

The Rockets are now 11-5 on the season and 4-2 in the conference. Havana is 3-3 in the Spoon River.

Marshall Pulls Bonehead Again

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Bonehead Club said Friday that Jim Marshall went the wrong way again—and wound up in Chicago instead of Dallas, where he was supposed to receive the annual Bonehead of the Year football trophy.

Marshall, defensive end for the Minnesota Vikings, was selected for running 66 yards the wrong way in the Viking-San Francisco 49er National Football League game. The boner resulted in a safety for the 49ers, but the Vikings won.

Brad Angers, who handled the arrangements for Marshall's visit, said a delegation went to Dallas' Love Field to greet Marshall on an incoming flight. No Marshall.

Then Angers was paged for a long-distance telephone call. "Hello Brad," said the voice on the phone, as Angers related it. "This is Jim Marshall. I'm in the air lines terminal in Chicago."

"It's absolutely on the level," said Angers. "Somehow he got on the wrong plane."

The Boneheads went ahead and presented the elaborate trophy, which is topped by a huge silver nut, to Marshall in absentia.

Marshall finally got to Dallas late Friday afternoon and told Angers that an accident on a freeway held up traffic as he was en route to the airport in Minneapolis. This caused him to miss the plane which was to have taken him to Dallas. Airline officials then arranged for Marshall to fly on an airliner coming to Dallas by way of Chicago. But the plane was delayed after it arrived in Chicago, causing him to miss the luncheon.

Namath In NY For Knee Repair

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Namath, the Jets' expensive rookie quarterback, came to New York Friday to have his damaged right knee repaired and gave the impression he would rather be in the hospital than where he was.

Surrounded by bright lights, cameras and microphones, Namath was exposed to the press at a mass interview in a plush restaurant. He said he didn't expect the scheduled knee operation would interfere with his play and that he didn't think a three-year contract at a rather astronomical salary would cause him to relax his efforts on the football field.

On touchy questions he passed the buck as deftly as he passes a football — to Jet owner Sonny Werblin, to Coach Weeb Ewbank or to his lawyer.

The injury is not uncommon in football and players have been known to practice as soon as eight weeks after this type of operation.

AVENUE LOPSIDED LOSS
CHAATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Suburban Signal Mountain's 7th grade basketball team was unusually happy about Thursday's 28-26 victory over Soddy-Daisy's 7th grade.

It avenged an earlier 73-9 loss.

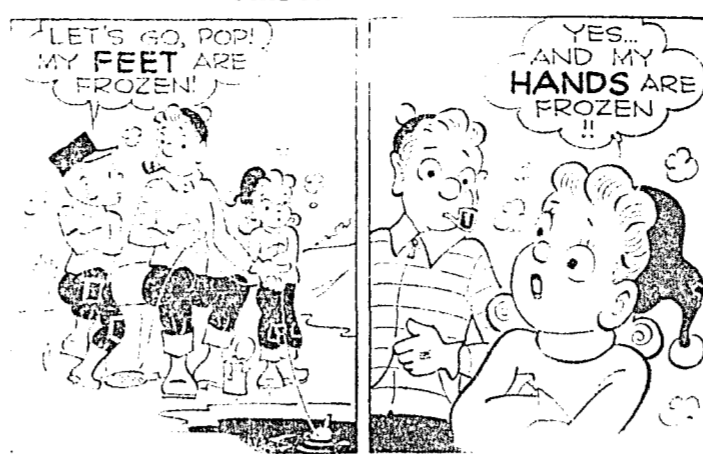

ASK COACH TO STAY
DURIHAM, N.H. (AP) — Officials of the University of New Hampshire asked Clarence (Chief) Boston Friday to reconsider his decision to quit as football coach.

Boston disclosed Thursday he plans to submit his resignation shortly.

Winston Churchill: Illustrious Life

Most men live their lives on a plain. A few may accomplish deeds outstanding enough to place them on the hills or mountains among their fellows. Still fewer—a mere handful a century—reach Everest heights during their time on earth.

Such a one was Sir Winston Leonard Spencer Churchill, whose death at 90 brings to a close one of the longest, richest and most significant lives ever lived by any man.

Churchill's adult life spanned all the way from the battle of Khartoum, which he witnessed (and which to us today seems like something out of medieval history), to the launching of a space probe to Mars.

A soldier and correspondent in his early manhood, Churchill by birth and talent was destined to find his career in government. Yet it was not until 1940, at an age when most men would be thinking of retirement, that his greatest days began.

It was Hitler's boast that he was Germany and Germany was Hitler, but truly, in those dark days of the Battle of Britain, Winston Churchill was Britain—to the world and to his own people.

It was "Winnie"—with his always present cigar in one hand, the other making the "V" sign of victory—scrambling over the rubble of what was once a London building, or following behind troops training in the field, or inspecting the landing beaches in Normandy, or—at last—inspecting Hitler's death bunker in Berlin.

Churchill in his long life knew almost every measure of success and fame which any man could reasonably hope for—as well as the ignominy of military blunders and political exile that would have broken a lesser man.

He received as many honors as any man could reasonably expect from a grateful and admiring world. But if the list of his titles and honors is long, the list of his accomplishments is longer.

Statesman, painter, Nobel prize-winning historian, he enriched our lives and language with his memorable speeches. To find his equal in the ability to stir men's souls with words, one must go back at least as far as Lincoln, perhaps to Pericles of Athens 2,300 years ago.

And if men walk this earth 23 centuries hence, and still praise greatness, they will know the name of Winston Churchill.

Weather In Harness

If we end poverty, avert war and get men to the moon, there will still be challenges aplenty. Anyone who thinks otherwise might devote some thought to the implications of the vast damage wrought by holiday season floods in northwestern California. Specifically, he might reflect on the possibilities of controlling the weather or at least minimizing its bad effects enough so that no such disaster as the floods in the Eureka area could take place.

This may sound romantic, but is it really so extravagant a dream in a society that has begun to explore the universe beyond this little planet? Is it truly unrealistic, by now, to think of harnessing the weather?

The California disaster is estimated to have cost some 575 million dollars, in addition to the loss of lives. The total ravages of bad weather comprise a mighty challenge, but one that society could deal with if sufficient energy and resources could be devoted to the task.

Need Lesson In Courtesy

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: A neighbor of mine has hated me ever since last December when I got the last good Christmas tree on the lot. She was right behind me and missed out on the tree by two minutes. This woman is teaching her children to hate my children and I don't know what to do about it.

Saturday I took my youngsters to the matinee. We ran into this woman's children in the lobby. My 11-year-old son said, "Hi" to her son, aged 12. The boy replied, "Shut up, you ugly rat." My son was hurt and puzzled. Finally he turned to me with tears in his eyes and asked, "Why would he answer me like that, mother?"

Is there something I can do to combat this awful thing? —NO WORDS FOR TELLING

Dear No Words: The best way to "combat this awful thing" is to teach your children to be kind and courteous to everyone although at times it may demand almost superhuman self-control. When the neighbor children behave like savages explain it is because they don't know better and that you hope one day they will learn.

Dear Ann Landers: Please pass the word to all middle-aged men who are tired of their "unexciting wives" and believe a new life awaits them after they get a divorce and marry a young woman. "Don't do it."

My wife became involved with another man. What she really wanted was more attention from me. But I was too busy. Instead of dealing with the problem I decided to get even with her by chasing a young girl.

To make a long story short, I chased the young girl until she caught me. I married her and what a horrible mistake that was! She hates keeping house, wants to eat out all the time, and whines when she doesn't get her way.

I can't spend my energy (and money) running around every night. I have to work hard to support two families. Her "cute little ways" now make me sick. A man 45 is no match for a young girl—physically, financially, socially or any other way.

So who's sorry now? My ex-wife, my three children, the young girl I married and most of all me, because it's all my fault. Again I say, DON'T DO IT! —BEN THAR

Dear Ben: Your fault? Not 100 per cent. Your wife should not have handed you a divorce so fast. A trial separation would have made much more sense.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 14 years old and in the 10th grade. I wanted to look especially pretty at a party last week so I asked my mother if I could shave my legs. She said, "No." I went ahead and shaved them anyway. Honestly, Ann, I had to do it.

Now, one week later, the hair seems to be growing back awfully fast. I think I will have to shave my legs again very soon if I want to look like a human being instead of a gorilla.

Please tell me if it's true that the oftener a person shaves the faster the hair grows. I'd hate to have to shave my legs every day. Thank you a lot. —MISS BRISTLES

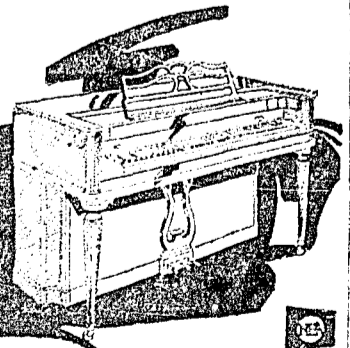

Dear Miss: Shaving DOES make hair grow faster but once every other week should be often enough. Between times use a little liquid bleach.

Your druggist will suggest bleaches which are safe and non-irritating. Some people prefer hair-removing creams to shaving. Try it and see which works best for you.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The organ is one of the world's oldest musical instruments and the first of the keyboard instruments. Ctesibus, a Greek engineer of the Third century, B.C., living in Alexandria, is credited with inventing the hydraulis, an instrument with the essential characteristics of the modern organ. It had a set of pipes controlled by keys and levers which admitted or shut off the wind. Cicero says it was often used at banquets in Rome.

GOP Congressmen Scarce,

So Families Come Along

By WASHINGTON STAFF
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
WASHINGTON (NEA)—When the House of Representatives convened on Jan. 4, there were many open stretches of seats on the depleted Republican side of the chamber. Noticing that several GOP congressmen had brought their children along, an observer noted:

"They've got so much room they can bring their families with them."

During President Johnson's holiday stay at his Texas ranch, most of his key staff people were with him as he shaped his 1965 plans.

By New Year's Eve, however, many were back at their White House desks. An exception: aide Horace Busby, an old presidential associate.

Commented a White House man: "Busby seems to be the leading ranch hand."

Getting on an elevator recently, a prominent lady mathematician asked the operator to take her to the fifth floor. When the elevator stopped there, she blurted:

"Oh, heavens! I'm terribly sorry. I meant the seventh floor."

The operator promptly whisked the elevator up two more flights and as the lady got off, she apologized again.

"I'm very sorry about my mistake but, after all, they're both prime numbers."

After the announcement of the election of Rep. Gerald Ford, R-Mich., as House minority leader, an observer, mindful of the Republicans' relatively low state following the 1964 elections, commented:

"It matters about as much as the recent election of the president of the National Press Club."

Sensors received hundreds of urgent requests from their constituents each year. Sen. Mike Monroney, D-Okla., nominates this one as the most desperate of 1964:

"Dear Sir: 'I'm a seaman second class in the Navy and presently I'm AWOL. Can you help me get a discharge as soon as possible?'"

The Post Office Department's announcement of its 1965 commemorative stamp issues produced a loud dissent from Rep. Richard Roudebush, R-Ind., who has been campaigning for three years for an issue honoring famed World War II war correspondent Ernie Pyle.

Roudebush was particularly miffed by the decision to issue stamps for the 700th anniversary of the birth of the Italian poet, Dante Alighieri, and the 750th anniversary of the signing of the Magna Charta.

"They're fine gestures, but a little remote," says Roudebush. "Ten million American GI's still remember Ernie Pyle."

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — For a thousand years, the descendants of this century's generations will examine the life of Sir Winston Churchill to find why he was one of the most beloved figures in history.

They should have no trouble. They will read his speeches, they will look at television reruns of the chubby man in a derby poking around battlefields with a cane, they will grin at his growl.

But, they will understand him, just as the outnumbered Greeks at Marathon would have understood him 400 years before Christ, for he was and will remain the contemporary man of all seasons.

He was more than the symbol of the unquenchable human spirit's determination to die rather than submit. His enemy, Hitler, had that in a perverted kind of way: he shot himself when the Allies were closing in.

Churchill was more than a symbol of the ageless search for victory in the ashes of disaster. So was Napoleon, as the world learned to its regret in his last blood-soaked journey from Elba to Waterloo.

He was a symbol of something else, too, just as precious and discernible in those years of the 1940s when the world was consumed by fright and fury in the oven of war.

It was his ever-present and always over-riding hope that life could be better than man's endless savagery might indicate or, perhaps, even deserve.

He put it this way: "The future towards which we are marching, across bloody fields and frightful manifestations of destruction, must surely be based upon the broad and simple virtues and upon the nobility of mankind."

Not that he had any illusions about mankind. He simply had the hope that with enough time and sufficient chance men might do better.

For he also said: "I believe that, generally speaking, given free institutions on a fair basis, the best side of man's nature will in the end surely come up-bermost. But this doctrine has its limits."

He had limits of his own, even in the field of the free institutions he dreamed of, for to preserve the British Empire he opposed independence for India. But his limits and defects were not enough to match his virtues.

The people of good will in his time saw in him a kind of human being they would be glad to be: the wit, the eloquence, the courage, the persistence against adversity, and the belief in the future.

They saw something else also and this was the essence of Churchill: He was a civilized and compassionate man who cherished peace through reason but was realistic enough to know sometimes only strength could make it possible.

This can be seen best when he is painted against the shadow of the other two most famous figures of the modern age: Hitler and Napoleon. One was a leader, the others were conquerors.

All three were mediocre students. All three had been soldiers. But all three had something else in common, too: they had ached for power all their lives. It was how they wished to use it that made the difference.

Hitler said: "I did not come into the world to make men better but make use of their weaknesses."

Napoleon said: "There is nothing like summary courts-martial to keep the lower classes and the rabble in line."

Churchill said: "In my country public men are proud to be the servants of the state and would be ashamed to be its masters."

Hitler's regime was the most cruel in history. One of Napoleon's biographers said, "His genius was based on the pedestal of a million corpses."

President Kennedy said of Churchill: "Indifferent himself to danger, he wept over the sorrows of others. He has served all men's freedom and dignity."

ON THE JOB—Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., the man who beat football coach Bud Wilkinson, is the second-oldest member of the Senate. Massachusetts' Edward Kennedy is his junior.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Nursery Sleuths Solve the Case of the Dyed Dodies

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

There's never a dull moment in some of our hospitals—especially in the nursery.

Doctors in one hospital were performing a circumcision when they noticed that the baby's blood was darker than normal, and that the baby's lips were blue.

A checkup in the nursery revealed that several other babies were turning blue. A diagnosis of methemoglobinemia was made.

In this disease, the iron in blood cells is deficient in oxygen.

Prompt treatment with an antidote and oxygen saved the babies' lives.

Blood tests of the rest of the babies in the nursery revealed that the disease was developing in several others.

Air conditioners were shut off on the chance that some pollutant was getting into the nursery from this source.

Engineers, poison experts and other consultants were called in and the nursery was closed to new admissions. No pollutants were discovered.

The food and water going into the infants' formulas were ruled out as a source of the poisoning.

The next step was to examine the diapers, sheets, and towels. This time, the investigators struck oil—aniline oil, to be exact. The name of the hospital was stenciled on the diapers with a commercial indelible ink, 25 per cent of which was aniline oil.

The diapers had been sterilized by dry heat, but this did not destroy a poison which is readily absorbed through the skin.

In order to remove the offending oil, it is necessary to boil the diapers in water after inking before they are used.

Fortunately, this lesson was learned without any deaths or any had after-effects in any of the babies. Measures to prevent a recurrence of this near-tragedy were immediately put into effect.

This incident will go down in history as the Case of the Dyed Dodies.

Q—My 7-year-old son had chicken pox a year ago. It left dark spots on his arms and legs. Is this unusual? Can they be removed?

Although there may be some scarring if a secondary infection results from scratching the lesions of chicken pox, persistent dark spots are rarely seen.

Your doctor should examine your son to determine what the spots are, and whether they are an aftermath of chicken pox or some other skin disease that developed at the same time.

Try Braised Celery

By Gaynor Maddox

Americans eat almost 1½ billion pounds of celery every year. More than half is grown in Florida. Our tastes for types has changed.

Most of us use Pascal or green types, delicate and tender without blanching. Golden or blanching type has decreased steadily in popularity in the last 40 years.

In the United States we usually eat celery raw but in Europe it is often cooked and served as a vegetable. Try it braised—the way you'll find it in many French restaurants.

Braised Celery (4 to 6 Servings)

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons minced onion
4 cups celery, diagonally

sliced
½ cup chicken consommé or stock
1 teaspoon chopped fresh parsley
½ teaspoon salt
¾ teaspoon ground marjoram
¼ teaspoon ground white pepper
(½ cup pignolia nuts, if desired)

Melt butter, saute onions until soft, almost transparent. Add celery and consommé, parsley, salt marjoram and white pepper.

Cover, cook over low heat about 10 to 15 minutes. (Celery should be crisp-tender.) Turn occasionally while cooking. (Add pignolia nuts if desired and cook 2 to 3 minutes longer.) Garnish with parsley.

The Mature Parent

Why Is She Reaching?

By Muriel Lawrence

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: Our lovely and talented daughter of 20 reaches for stars when it comes to men. She gets "crushes" on older ones who are either married or uninterested in her while she ignores the fine boys she could have. She's through with a date as soon as he shows interest in her. I should tell you that she took the news that she is our adopted child quite hard; and so I have begun to wonder if this attitude is normal young confusion or a sign of deeper trouble. . . .

ANSWER: You sound like such a devoted mother that I want you to honor this uneasiness you feel—and ask a psychiatrist for guidance.

You see, like you, I have no way of knowing whether your daughter is seriously troubled or whether she isn't.

But I'm pretty sure of this: when a child's adolescence throws the mating drive into high gear, his feelings toward the mating which produced him can get mixed up in it.

So this beautiful child of yours may not be struggling with all the feelings associated with her knowledge of her parents' abandonment, not only of her, but each other. And not unnaturally be expressing themselves in fear of any sexual commitment for herself—in "crushes" on partners she cannot have and in avoidance of relationship she could have which might really involve her.

Such a situation would be, of course, way out of our control. There would be very little we could do about it because the child's appreciation of us would make her preoccupation with her natural parents' treatment of each other too subsurface, too sensitive to become aware of, much less to discuss with us.

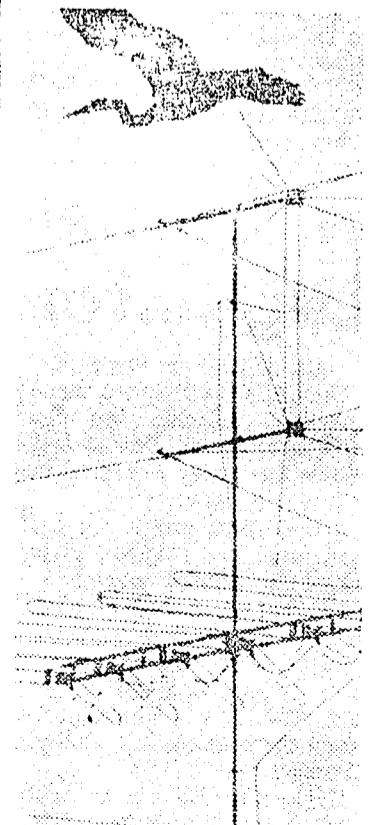

We are fools to be ashamed of seeking professional guidance in a situation like this—as foolish as we'd be not to ask a physician for antibiotics for an infection we could not control.

In Emily Brontë's novel "Wuthering Heights," the adoptive child Heathcliff, was over-ambitious, too. But in Emily Brontë's day, all one could do about Heathcliff's self-obstructing pride was to wage one's hands over it as he created one situation after another that brought sorrow to himself and other people.

Now, spotting a star-reacher in an adopted child, we do not have to suffer helpless uneasiness. We can perceive that circumstances over which we had no control may have come home to roost—and ask a psychiatrist to help us with her possible suffering.

As I feel respect for your perceptive love of your daughter, I think it rates something better than continuing uneasiness.

IT'S TRUE! IT'S TRUE!—All that stuff about the stork—this photograph from Ventura, Calif., seems to be first-hand evidence. Circling around a house, check. Where's the bundle? Maybe already deposited. Check. Then the tacks came loose on the whole idea. Fred Ortiz, who took the picture, found out it was a crane and not a stork. Uncheck.
